

Fraternal Filler - A Matter of Opinion

by Bro. John Worlein, editeur du jour

Nov. 2005

Among the lot of things which perplex me is the Masonic habit of locking things up and hiding the key. "It's the way things have always been done" is the usually accepted explanation for inexplicable (and usually unwritten) 'rules'.

"Always" is a long, long, time! I often wonder if the person is speaking of when he was a 'young' Mason, the way he wanted to do it when he was Master of his lodge, or the way he thinks it really has 'always been done', The worst possible explanation is that "the way its always been done" is merely a means to exert control over the constituents of a Lodge a petty and destructive possibility. Masonry is about freedom of the mind, not structure at our or someone else's personal expense.

I'll go out on a limb and say that the only sure things in Masonry are that nothing has always been done in any particular way in any given jurisdiction, and that it has never been done the same way in all Masonic jurisdictions. On its best face, Freemasonry is perpetually in a state of self invention, when it becomes locked in time, it becomes stagnant and has little appeal to current or prospective members. Some think that our current problems are due to being trapped in a 1940's or 50's Masonic mentality, when "Big Tent" Masonry held full sway.

Recall in the last paragraph I said that procedures are transient - but don't think this means that Masonic values also are. Our value system beginning with the basic tenets of Truth, Relief and Brotherly Love are the hub of the wheel, one may think of the spokes as the symbols we use to test our philosophy. The rim is our contact with the earth and the earth is not always the same - so the rim needs to conform to the demands of a changing. .Landscape. This is a long way of saying that we need to shape our view of Freemasonry to make it pertinent in our changing work

As Masons, we can't afford to lock up our Craft and keep it chained to a particular period of time, even if it is an earlier period of our own personal Masonic era. Try to think of Freemasonry as an evolutionary force – continually appealing to and on shaping new generations. Understand that concept and you will begin to understand the 'free' in Freemasonry, a structure of values, which frees your mind and shapes your daily world, no matter what that world looks like.
