

Affirmations for Sociatal Harmony

I take on the consciousness of a world transformed, of a world healed. For as I feel it, it comes to be.

I take on the consciousness of a world who has grown in compassion, in wisdom, grown in equanimity, and beauty.

I feel a flowering of dreams, dreams that bring joy to people, dreams that responsibly care for the world.

Dreams that pull people forward with gentle arms and lovingkindness.

I see a world where better opportunities and choices present themselves, and people understand new ways to produce harmony.

I see a world of harmony and peace, where people connect through their feelings of faith, feelings of fondness for the future being created.

A world where people stand side by side, like trees in the forest, producing what society needs to thrive and survive. With Grace and gentleness, with truth and awareness.

I see a society whose shared gratitude brings a feeling of joy, whose united purpose is aligned with the Earth's magnificence.

How each of us are reflections of a divine attribute. I see a world around me that brings pleasure and satisfaction and upliftment and wonder for the manifestations of nature, and our human endeavors.

I see a world where every day surprises of sweetness appear.

The long awaited blooms of joy are unfolding their petals. Each breath carries the gems of the mountains closer, the briskness of the river and the melodies it emits makes their way into our hearts, with each breath. The serenades of the birds permeate our hearts and call forth amazing realizations.

I see a world where our imaginations are actively taking information creating feelings of belonging and happiness. Each building is a representation of love, which is evident. Each tree is a symbol of striving upwards and higher in our quests.

Each view of the valley is a snapshot of the distant thoughts and memories in abundance which reside within.

These reflections help us know what is inside of ourselves.
