

THE JUDY BLACK MEMORIAL PARK AND GARDENS

2023 ANNUAL REPORT

WE THANK YOU

Since we opened our doors over ten years ago, our mission has been the same: to be a gathering place in Washington that invites friends and neighbors to relax, learn, play, and share all that our community offers.

That means touching each and every one of you—our Washington neighbors, our friends from nearby towns, our local businesses, farmers and market vendors, our artists and authors, plus visitors exploring our little slice of heaven.

Our most important goal is to give every one of you a reason to visit the park—whether it’s a sports-watching party, an outdoor movie, a Saturday farmers market, an art opening, a music performance, a holiday celebration, or simply a picnic on the grass or a rest on a bench. Looking ahead, we aspire increasingly to become a hub for learning—a center for ideas, exploration and engagement—with a growing number of author talks, lectures, demonstrations, etc.

We are grateful to the local businesses that sponsor events at the park, as well as to the organizations that host their own public events in our space. Our partnership with the Town of Washington often makes us the venue for holiday celebrations. We value our farmers, local vendors, and the artists who share with you their incredible products and creations—all part of our growing family.

We are excited about the possibilities that lie ahead. With your continued support, we are confident that The Judy Black Memorial Park and Gardens will continue to be at the center of our vibrant community, a place for you to connect with friends and neighbors.

Thank you for being a friend of the park.

“I first started volunteering at the Judy Black Park in honor of my dear friend, Denise Trevenen. Through my volunteer work at the park, I have met so many charming people—locals and visitors alike, artists and art lovers, Gilmore Girls fans, retirees, high school students from The Frederick Gunn School and Shepaug Valley High School. It really is a place that brings people together. The butterflies, flowers and pals who stopped by were the icing on the cake!”

—Annie Gilpin, Volunteer

“The Judy Black Park creates a cohesive connection in the center of Washington Depot. People stroll through the park as they walk on their errands around town, stopping to admire the flowers and art exhibits along the way. When I lead monthly Hootenannies during the farmers market, I witness a whole beautiful swirling scene—kids stopping to dance, farmers selling to happy customers, friends and neighbors stopping to chat and I think, ‘This is community!’”

—Jim McDonough, Washington resident & Region 12 employee

SPOTLIGHT: TRUSTEE RONALD GARFUNKEL

"I became involved with the Judy Black Park when I heard that a group of local citizens purchased the former Vinnie's gas station," Ronald Garfunkel explains. He made a substantial pledge and joined the board in 2016.

Ron's board term expires next year. His valuable contributions to the park will last well beyond the end of his service. As co-chair of the fund development committee, Ron has been instrumental in balancing the focus on both the short- and long-term financial stability of the park.

Ron is champion of the notion that an organization dedicated to serving our entire community needs to encourage both small and large annual donations so that everyone has a stake in the ongoing success of the park. With an eye towards the future, Ron encouraged the board to launch the endowment fund.

"The Denise DeVault Trevenen Endowment Fund will assure the park's existence well beyond my lifetime," he says, noting that the fund is named in memory of a former board president and one of its guiding lights.

A native of Westchester County, N.Y., Ron graduated from Lafayette College in 1963, became a commissioned infantry officer with the US Army and served in Vietnam. After his military service, he joined his family's business, Service Directions Inc. He retired as CEO in 2016. Ron and his wife, Sande Breakstone, made their way to Litchfield County in 1993, and bought their current property where they eventually built a new house.

"I feel honored to be a part of the great story of the Judy Black Park," Ron says. "I love to see how it has truly become the cornerstone and gathering place for Washington and surrounding communities," he sums up. The park's board and staff are honored to have Ron Garfunkel as one of our most active and generous supporters.

"I have enjoyed the Judy Black Park from the moment it was opened to the public. Not only does it bring beauty to our town, it also brings our community together simply by its existence. Its grounds welcome everyone during any season and the old renovated Vinny's gas station is now a beautiful gallery that hosts many artists, offers many programs and supports local farms by having a seasonal farmers market. I enjoy my volunteer work at the park, which allows me to stay in touch with the locals and welcome curious visitors. No matter what season, it's a place to just fill up your senses."

—Vi Owens, Volunteer

"I see Judy Black Park as one of our many community jewels, and a shining example of repurposing for public benefit."

—Howard Rosenfeld
