Kris Mailepors, MBA

Author, Coach, Consultant, National Speaker

Since 1998, Kris Mailepors has directly shaped hundreds of leaders in healthcare, finance, retail, automotive, and other industries with his unique approaches to thriving as a leader. His work and his writing have reached countless others.

In our modern workplace, leadership matters. The #1 reason people leave a job is due to their relationship with their leader.

People's lives at work and home are changing continuously and are more complicated than ever. As a result, leaders are experiencing demands not previously seen. Leaders must manage just like before, but they must also shepherd their individuals and teams each day to be the best versions of themselves.

How do your leaders "show up" every day?

Most leaders show up and empty their tank each day for the benefit of those around them. The result can be turnover & burnout. This is your organization's most preventable problem. This important issue has a profound impact on both new leaders and experienced C-suite executives.

ABOUT KRIS MAILEPORS

Kris Mailepors has left his imprint on leaders in many industries with a heart-centered approach that is so unique that every leader discovers new and deeply personal perspectives with him.

Kris is deeply passionate about helping the voiceless be heard. Through volunteering with youth services and animal rights, Kris throws a lifeline to those in need. He brings this to his work, supporting leaders to connect with what is most important to them. With Kris, leaders will discover their authenticity and alignment with ease.

Kris grew up in New England. He completed his undergraduate in Animal Science from the University of Maine and received his MBA from the University of Otago in Dunedin, New Zealand. One of his on-going life goals is to have his age equal the number of countries he has visited – it keeps the travel goals consistently important. Travel outside of your culture is good for the soul.

THE EASY TO FOLLOW LEADER by Kris Mailepors

Have you ever asked yourself:

"Am I easy to follow?"

The easy to follow leader - the best leader you'll ever be - isn't hiding at the end of some mysterious journey. That leader is in you today, ready to be unleashed.

Today's leaders are overwhelmed. Being easy to follow is about revealing what is most naturally important to you or your business; it's about actively demonstrating it with your behavior. It's about openly recognizing it in others. Mastering leadership in the modern workplace can have profound effects on how most people bring balance to their professional and personal lives.

"A fantastic read to give you new perspectives on effective leadership styles that come so naturally they are easy to overlook."

THE BUSHIDO WAY

Leaning on a centuries-old philosophy of the Samurai, modern-day leaders are finding their stride to truly embody a warrior's mindset.

Being the best leader you'll ever be doesn't happen at the end of a journey of assessments, classes, conferences, Master's degrees, and books. That leader is in you this very moment, and lives through your values.

Intrapreneuring: We all know what being an entrepreneur is, but modern workplaces are desperate for intrapreneurs; people who can bring innovation and change from within. Millions of employed workers need people "on the inside" who can support, coach, and be a guide through complicated and challenging work environments. Our workplace cultures are hungry for insiders who can be a pillar and shining example for others.
