True Women of the West

Let's face it. Women of the West are a breed apart. Whether they are born here or arrive later, they seem to have a spirit that just comes with the territory. Call it part drive, part resourcefulness, part staying power, but more than anything else, it's a force to be reckoned with. It's at the heart of all that has happened in the West from the beginning and at the heart of all that has happened at our museum.

Bucking Up in the Early Years

As it turns out, it all began with a rescue. In 1972 a devastating fire destroyed the original Desert Caballeros Western Museum, now: Sigler Western Museum, and all appeared to be lost. That's when founder H.K. "Mac" MacLennan came up with the idea of asking Wickenburg women to help raise funds and provide volunteers. It didn't take long for the fledgling women's group to buck up. Between fiestas and fundraisers, the Museum practically rose from the ashes overnight, eventually becoming one of the most respected in the Southwest.

Women Making History

From the 15 women who initially gathered as charter directors, Las Señoras is today an awe-inspiring organization of more than 200 members. Its mission? As in the early days, it is to come to the aid of the Museum. Each year, Las Señoras presents the Museum with the fruits of its labors - a generous check to be used for everything from paint to payroll.

What's in Store When You Join

Wouldn't you like to know that by donating a little of your time you could help turn it into millions of dollars? That is exactly what Las Señoras members have done for their Museum. Over the past 50-plus years, Las Señoras has raised and donated over $3,500,000 to the Sigler Western Museum (formerly Desert Caballeros Western Museum).

Home On the Range

The Las Señoras Annual Home Tour has become a tradition, and not just for Wickenburg residents but for those who live throughout the Valley of the Sun. Las Señoras members look forward to providing this very popular annual peek into how our part of the West is lived.

Unbridled Friendship

Genuine friendship is at the heart of Las Señoras. Come join us in our various activities throughout the year. Make new friends and enjoy the companionship of old friends as we work together for our Museum.
