Letter of credit (LC)

A Letter of Credit (LC) is a financial guarantee issued by a bank on behalf of a buyer to ensure payment to a seller upon meeting specified conditions. It provides security for both parties in international trade transactions.

Loan syndication

Loan syndication is a financing arrangement where multiple lenders collectively fund a single loan facility for a borrower. This allows lenders to spread the risk associated with large loan transactions and enables borrowers to access the required funds more efficiently.

Accounts receivable factoring

Accounts receivable factoring is a financing method where a company sells its outstanding invoices or receivables to a third-party financial institution, known as a factor, at a discount. This provides immediate cash flow to the company, allowing it to access funds that it is owed but has not yet collected.

Sovereign Guarantee

A sovereign guarantee is a commitment made by a government to ensure the repayment of debt or financial obligations incurred by its entities. It serves as a form of assurance to lenders or investors, backed by the full faith and credit of the government, that their investments will be repaid even if the borrowing entity defaults.
