Alexandra has been a dear friend of mine for many years and it is my great honor that she has agreed to collaborate with me on this project. Also collaborating are the Mosaic Dance Company and the Starbely Dancers as well as additional special guests to be announced.

This new full-stage theatrical dance production by Myra Krien, the Mosaic

Dance Company and the Starbelly Dancers revolves around the journey every human being embarks upon for meaning. The production follows the fool's journey from innocence to maturity through the lush visual landscape of paintings by well-known artist Alexandra Eldridge from her and writer Tony Barnstone's recently released, The Radiant Tarot. The use of Tarot as a practice of divination dates back to at least the 15th century, utilized to tap into the greater spiritual world and find meaning and guidance in one's life. From a psychological perspective, Tarot is a means of exploring and getting to know the unconscious self, hidden drives, dreams, yearning, and the well of creativity within each of us. The Radiant Tarot is an interpretation of the Tarot through the lens of psychology, the science of creativity, and the world's literary, artistic and spiritual traditions.

Designed to spark your own genius and imagination, The Radiant Tarot is a pathway towards creative living and transformation. Inspired by this unique creation, Myra Krien's vision will bring Eldridge's symbolism to life through dance to explore universal themes that are present in philosophy, psychology, poetry, religion, music, and other arts that all speak to the human search for meaning.

Dance has, throughout time, been a universal means of expressing the human experience. What makes dance so profound is the tangible beauty of the human body--the vessel through which each and every one of us experiences life, and the temple in which we carry our stories. What better way to bring to life the path of self-discovery inherent in the Tarot than through the literal embodiment of these symbols and archetypal energies--through the power of dance. Eldridge's vivid visual interpretation of the Tarot utilize vibrant animal and plant imagery, informed by poet William Blake's prescient statement that "Nature is imagination itself."

Combined with dance, projection, costuming, and spoken word, this multimedia production will bring the richness of The Radiant Tarot's symbols to embodied realization, and aims to be a force of light and inspiration to its audiences. By reflecting on the human path to self-discovery and meaning through the lush landscape of symbolism, art, myth, story this project will celebrate humanity's endless creativity, genius, and imagination while demonstrating the threads of our interconnectedness, our universal similarities, as well as defining that which makes each of unique and different. In nature, no two leaves are the same, though they may be similar, each is as unique as a thumbprint. As are we. Solutions to today's problems will require unparalleled creativity, ingenuity, imagination as well as for each of us to reflect on our unique gifts and our purpose.
