MEANWHILE, STAY SAFE!

I wanted to let you know that Pueblo Grande Museum has opened its outdoor interpretive trails to the public! Guests can visit the interpretive trails free of charge Monday – Saturday from 9 am – 4:45 pm.

We have two trails - the portal loop trail near the grand canal and our main interpretive trail that includes the platform mound, Hohokam House replicas, and ballcourt. All indoor facilities including restrooms remain closed to the public at this time.

Just wanted to share the good news!

Check our website and follow us on Facebook (<https://www.facebook.com/PuebloGrandeMuseum>) and YouTube (<https://www.youtube.com/c/PuebloGrandeMuseumArchaeologicalPark/videos>).

Please let us know if you have any questions.

ANCESTRAL ARROW STRAIGHTENER by Ron Moses 2020

HOMEWORK

For all S.A.L.T. Members and Associates!

While you are looking for something to do at home... please go to our S.A.L.T. Website, www.saltskills.com and scroll way down to the bottom beyond CONTACT US and open the S.A.L.T. SKILLS pdf under S.A.L.T. INFO. Look through all the skills and please e-mail us the ones you are interested in learning to saltskills@gmail.com

We can include "How To" information in our newsletters and on the website.

THANK YOU!!!

Just completed this replica ancestral arrow straightener made from a Mudstone cobble from the Oregon coast. When heated, the stone is used to temporarily soften a wooden arrow shaft so it can be straightened.

Mudstone, like Siltstone, and Argillite, is a softer non-fissile sedimentary rock that can be carved and shaped with abrasion. I used pieces of Rio Grande Red sandstone to cut the groove and shape/polish the cobble.

TWO-SIDED DEER ANTLER DICE GAME

by Ron Moses 2020

This SALT project is about constructing and playing a two-sided dice game. The information is an adaptation of information that appeared in an article written by Chuck Kritzen and was included in the Spring 2008 Bulletin Of Primitive Technology No. 38.

6 two-sided antler section dice and agave dice shaker and lid

The dice used in his article were made of walnut shell halves. The dice featured in my project were made from sections of deer antler. The rest of the game, including the scoring, is based on Mr. Kritzen's excellent description of what would have been a typical game of ancestral Native California Culture.

The project consists of three elements: 6 two-sided dice, 12 scoring sticks, and an agave dice shaker, which also doubles as a game storage container.

The six antler section dice are plain on one side and have a painted black dot painted on the second side. The black paint was made from powdered charcoal mixed with egg white. The twelve scoring sticks were made from small twigs from a desert fern tree that had the bark scraped away to reveal the green inner surface.

Desert fern tree wood being made into 12 scoring keeping sticks

The container used as a dice shaker and also as a game storage box was made from a dried and hollow section of agave flower stalk. The inside walls were scraped down to the hard outer layer of the stalk. Leather was used to cover the opening at the bottom. A snug fitting lid was constructed from cedar and leather with a leather and antler pull.

Section of agave flower stalk

Stalk walls scraped down and a dot painted on one side of each dice

Finished dice shaker with game storage lid in place

Leather attached to close off bottom of shaker

Cedar shaped and attached to leather disk for lid

The object of the game is for one player to collect all 12 scoring sticks by throwing combinations of winning dice. Traditionally the dice were shaken and then cast into a basket or on to a blanket.

Winning dice combinations:

3 dice showing plain and 3 dice showing the black dot = 1 point (1 stick) and same player rolls again

6 dice all showing plain or all showing the black dot = 2 points (2 sticks) and same player rolls again

All other dice combinations = 0 points (0 sticks) and play moves to next player

The game starts with all the sticks in a center pile. Once the center pile is gone, a player with a winning roll takes sticks from another player's sticks.

A player's turn continues as long as each roll is a winning combination. After a non-winning roll, play passes to the next player. This continues between players until one player wins the game by collecting all 12 sticks.

Winning a game of chance was considered by some cultures to be a sign of having a powerful force. Such games may have been used both as entertainment and as a way to settle disagreements, similar to our flipping of a coin.

I hope you enjoy learning about the project as much as I did.

S.A.L.T. MEMBERS OUT ON THE TRAIL

DUTCH OVEN COOKING by Tom Wax

Tips and How To:

Last Thanksgiving I made Cherry Cobbler in a Dutch Oven. You can cook almost anything in a Dutch Oven! I have killed a one eyed chicken and cooked it in my Dutch Oven that was tough as rubber (LOL) to Pineapple Upside Down cake. I have made Beef Stew, biscuits, a frozen pecan pie, fried fish, pancakes and eggs to mention some of the things that I have made in a Dutch Oven.

You can use the lid turned upside down as a griddle to make pancakes, eggs, etc. on a bed of coals..

Always cook with coals when using a Dutch Oven, never on a fire.

When buying a Dutch Oven, make sure it has legs on the bottom and lip on the top. The lip on the top hold the coals on the lid and the legs on the bottom help keep the coals from touching the bottom. Most of the time the coals will touch the bottom anyway.

I use aluminum foil for easy clean up inside the Dutch Oven as a liner. I used a yellow cake mix and cherry pie filling to make this cherry cobbler. If you can find a cherry chip cake mix, it would make it even better. I have also used Biquick, but it is not as tasty as a cake mix.

This photo shows the ending results of a delicious dessert.

When cooking over coals, use hardwood trees for long lasting coals. Pine really doesn't cut it for cooking with coals, they don't last long. There was one time at Mount Rainier National Park that I had to buy firewood because you were not allowed to collect wood and the flames would die out as soon as you quit adding wood and not make a coal. Fortunately, I had brought along some charcoal to make biscuits.

FANTASTIC FIND!

The engraved images of two giraffes, estimated to be some seven to nine thousand years old, have been found atop a 50-foot-high sandstone outcrop in the Sahara Desert of northeastern Niger.

Recorded last November by documentary photographer David Coulson of the Trust for African Rock Art (TARA) and French archaeologist Jean Clottes, president of the Paris-based International Committee of Rock Art, the carvings, one of which is more than 20 feet in height, are among the finest examples of African rock art found to date; the larger of the two images may well be the largest-known single prehistoric work of art in the world.

Surrounded by hundreds of smaller engravings, the giraffes are carved in the so-called Bubalus style of the Large Wild Fauna period (ca. 9,000-6500 B.C.), typified by naturalistic renderings of the giant long-horned buffalo Bubalus antiquus (for which the period takes its name), rhinoceros, elephants, hippopotamus, giraffes, ostriches, lions, aurochs, and crocodile. Like many images from this period, the Niger petroglyphs are deep cut and polished. According to Clottes, the giraffes are among the finest images he has ever seen. "The technique is perfect," he said. "If you put this in the Louvre, it would look just fine."

The giraffe and its companion each have a long line emanating from their nose that terminates in the image of a small man. "We believe that this has important significance, perhaps representing shamanic association or symbolism," said Coulson. "We simply do not know. What is certain, however, is that the giraffe was of vital importance to early African populations, possibly being associated with the bringing of rain."

At the time the engravings were made the Sahara was a far more hospitable place. Rather than the parched landscape it is today, it was covered with trees, grasses, rivers, and lakes. The Sahara began drying some 3,000 years ago, reaching its current state around 2,500 years ago. "This art depicts another world," says Coulson, "one in which diverse cultures flourished alongside herds of game."

TARA, a non-profit research institution of which Coulson is chairman, was established in 1995 to document and where possible undertake measures to preserve the entire corpus of African rock art, which by Coulson's estimates, is carved or painted at what may be well over a half million sites. Despite the remoteness of many sites this art is subject to serious threats such as vandalism, graffiti, target practice, and mass tourism. "In the face of such threats," says Coulson, "TARA is endeavoring to create an awareness of the richness and value of the art. It is not only Africa's heritage but the world's heritage, whose significance is only now being recognized."

PRESCOTT PRIMITIVE LIVING SKILLS Prescott, Arizona

Check out Kiowa Sage on Facebook!

Hello friends! It's Kiowa Sage! I started a local meetup group to teach courses on primitive living skills, nature awareness and outdoor survival skills - all of which I've been training in for many years. All classes ranging from two hour workshops, day long classes and multiple day immersion courses. Skills and knowledge bases such as making fire with sticks, edible and medicinal plants, animal trapping and tracking, fiber arts and weaving, basic outdoor survival skills and how to do more with less in the outdoors. Right now I only have a couple classes listed until I acquire more traffic. Check out some of the listings that are available! www.meetup.com

Watch for new listings of other classes are offered, and there will be more to come!

SEPTEMBER 12 - 18, 2021

"Rabbitstick is the Mother Church of Primitive Technology"

-Steve Watts, Past President of the Society of Primitive Technology

Rabbitstick Primitive Skills Gathering, held the 3rd week of September in ID, is the premier Backtracks event. Rabbitstick is the oldest of all of the modern primitive skills events and has been the model for most of the events currently running worldwide. Each year we host nearly 150 instructional and support staff who provide a camp with hands-on classes that run 9am-5pm for 5 days for about 400 registered participants. This is an unparalleled opportunity to learn skills and get to know teachers that you can trust. Visit our new website - rabbitstick.com - for complete event and registration details. Backtracks has assembled one of the largest and most complete rosters of primitive skills teachers and practitioners available anywhere. Backtracks is your source for the best instructional staff you'll find at any event. Join Us!
