PUEBLO GRANDE MUSEUM

Pueblo Grande Museum is an archaeological site once inhabited by the Hohokam culture, just east of downtown Phoenix, next to Sky Harbor International Airport. It's a National Historic Landmark and Phoenix Point of Pride accessible by the Sky Train and the Light Rail. Part of the City of Phoenix Parks and Recreation Department since 1929, it's the largest preserved archaeological site in Phoenix.

THE STORY CONTINUES...

Pueblo Grande just put out an in depth "on-line exhibit" called The Story Continues. Here is the link to go to the part of the exhibit that includes SALT. Just scroll down past that guy at the Artifact Cart and past the parts about pottery. That is where the part about SALT is located. On the SALT photo you can move the arrows from side-to-side to get two separate full pictures.

Great Class Charlie & Tamara!

Peter at work...

I spent my Saturday morning at Pueblo Grande Museum with my friends in the SALT group. We are there the third Saturday of every month demonstrating some ancient technology or lifestyle to the visitors of the museum. The fun part is one member teaches and EVERYONE participates.

Today was Argillite Day. We all selected a piece of Argillite rock and spent a few hours using water, sandstone, and muscle power to shape the rock into whatever we wanted. Most of us made an ancient style pendant for a necklace.

Turquoise and obsidian were valued by ancient people across the Southwest for thousands of years. Argillite was lesser known but equally valuable. In other parts of the country, it's called pipestone, and like its namesake suggests, is used for carving smoking pipes. It was also used to carve beads, pendants, bracelets, and effigies. Argillite is made of compacted mud or clay, and in Arizona most argillite comes from deposits in a rock formation called Mazatzal Quartzite. This distinctive deposit of argillite was mined at least a thousand years ago near Prescott. The argillite mine near Prescott was the source of many ancient artifacts found in Arizona.

The argillite we used today came from those ancient mines. The process we used is relatively simple. Select your piece of argillite, envision what you want it to become, and then figure out how to continually wet it and rub it on a piece of wet sandstone until you have removed everything that is not what you envisioned. Your hand will get VERY tired of holding the pieces of rock (I got cramps in my hand) and your arm and shoulder will get VERY tired from the repetitive motions of rubbing the stone back and forth over the wet sandstone.

Did I mention it is VERY messy? It is VERY messy. Argillite is ancient mud that has hardened into a rock. Using the sandstone and water you effectively are turning the parts of it you don't want back into mud. Dark orange mud.

When we had the shape we wanted, we reverted to a “modern Indian” technique of using 1200 grit sandpaper to smooth the surface rather than the method of rubbing it on leather that would have been used in the past. Finally, it needed to be oiled. You can use two techniques.

The ancients would often use their own body oils from their nose and forehead to oil the stone. This imparts your spirit into the piece. Or, they used animal fats.

When I was done smoothing my piece, I used both my nose oil and forehead oil to make the piece shine. My spirit is now imparted into the pendant. After spending many minutes rubbing those oils into the piece I also used some bear fat. Yes, we had bear fat handy. Why wouldn't we? A few coats of bear fat also got rubbed into the piece.

So, a bear and I now inhabit the stone pendant which I will now turn into a necklace.

FYI the pipe in the photos is one I own made by Ray Redwing. Ray is Santee Sioux. He was born and raised in South Dakota and has taught pipe making at Pipestone National Monument in Minnesota for many years. – Peter Huegel

Scallop Fishermen Find Woolly Mammoth Tooth, Will Auction It to Help Support Ukrainians

The nearly seven-pound, foot-long fossil will fetch thousands to fund humanitarian relief efforts in Ukraine

BY BOB MCNALLY | PUBLISHED MAR 11, 2022 3:26 PM

The New England Fishmongers crew made an interesting archaeological discovery late last December when they hauled in a large fossil while dredging for scallops off the coast of Newburyport, Massachusetts. The fossil was later identified as a woolly mammoth tooth. The tooth has been kept inside a restaurant in Maine for the last few months, but the Fishmongers crew has decided to auction off the fossil and donate 100 percent of the proceeds to help with the ongoing humanitarian crisis in Ukraine.

On Dec. 20, Capt. Asher Molyneux and crew were dragging their nets off Plum Island near Newburyport when they brought the large, brown chunk aboard the Finlander II. Molyneux first noticed the fossil while the crew was picking through a pile of shellfish, and he later told National Fisherman that he immediately recognized what it was.

"I looked back and saw what looked like some kind of arthropod stuffed into the pile," Molyneux said. "I went back and grabbed it and said, 'That's a mammoth tooth.' I don't know how I knew that. I must have seen a picture somewhere."

Molyneux and crew gave their discovery to Capt. Tim Rider, owner the Finlander II, who brought it to the University of New Hampshire. UNH Paleontologist William Clyde confirmed that it was a woolly mammoth molar, and although the university did not carbon date the fossil, Clyde estimates the tooth is somewhere between 10,000 and 15,000 years old.

Rider then took the ancient piece of New England history to his restaurant in Kittery, Maine, where it has stayed for the past few months. It wasn't until recently that Rider decided to auction off the fossil and use to aid humanitarian efforts in Ukraine.

The woolly mammoth molar is currently listed on Ebay, and the auction will close at noon EST on Sunday, March 13. At press time, the top bid was $9,600.

Rider told NBC-10 Boston that he plans to donate all the proceeds from the auction to World Central Kitchen, a non-profit organization that is working to provide fresh meals for Ukrainian families and refugees. WCK currently has stations at eight border crossing across the country, along with additional locations in eight Ukrainian cities, including Odessa, Lviv, and Kyiv.

"If it makes several thousand dollars, that's good, it's going to help someone," Rider said. "Obviously, I can't solve the world's problems as a fisherman, but I can contribute to help the people that are suffering."

1103103 MASSACHUSETTS HUNTING AND FISHING

So, while testing the sling yesterday, a friend asked me if it was the same thing as a bola. To be honest, I wasn't really sure. I knew I had heard about bolas before, I just couldn't remember what they were. So, when I got home, I did a quick search and was quickly reminded. Anyway, after looking at a few examples, I made this today. It definitely isn't the best bola ever made. After just a couple throws one of the stones already busted and there are a couple tears in the sheep skin. Fun project for sure though!

PRESCOTT PRIMITIVE LIVING SKILLS Prescott, Arizona

Check out Kiowa Sage on Facebook!

Hello friends! It's Kiowa Sage! I started a local meetup group to teach courses on primitive living skills, nature awareness and outdoor survival skills - all of which I've been training in for many years. All classes ranging from two hour workshops, day long classes and multiple day immersion courses. Skills and knowledge bases such as making fire with sticks, edible and medicinal plants, animal trapping and tracking, fiber arts and weaving, basic outdoor survival skills and how to do more with less in the outdoors. Right now I only have a couple classes listed until I acquire more traffic. Check out some of the listings that are available! www.meetup.com

Watch for new listings of classes that are offered, and there will be more to come!

August

Paleo Bread Baking with Natural Leavening

2 days August 6 – 7 (Saturday and Sunday)

Co instructed by Alma Carel and Robin Blankenship

What a better way to celebrate Lammass, the first festival of the grain harvest, then to bake traditional paleo recipes?

Alma will start us out on our first day teaching primitive sprouted bread preparation, and then we will set a sourdough sponge. Learn to winnow grain from the field, hand grind whole grain into flour, and learn delicious preparations for ancient grains and wild seeds. On the second day we will bake the different breads using hearth cooking and mud oven techniques.

Throughout the class Alma will share a wealth of knowledge of Earth traditions and history, gathered after years of focused and diligent study driven by her deep curiosity of global cultures and celebrations throughout history. Don't miss this inspiring weekend.

Set your camp up in the woods along the banks of pristine Cottonwood Creek. Use our fully equipped large outdoor kitchen to prepare your own meals and snacks. Oils, spices, and teas are also provided, along with all the cooking pots, pans and eating dishes. There is an adobe "horno" baking oven, several solar ovens, and dutch ovens. Facilities include composting toilets and a lovely solar shower structure.

$115 includes camping, classes and materials, use of kitchen and bath facilities.

Best Tasting Survival Plants of the Rocky Mountain West with nationally known survival plant expert Cattail Bob Seebeck

2 days August 11 – 12 (Thursday – Friday)

Instructed by Cattail Bob Seebeck

Plant walks on Thursday through the riparian and more moist meadow areas of 8,000 ft. Friday walk will focus on the more desert environment and the Pinon and Cedar boundary along the base of the Sangre de Cristo Mountains. Learn to correctly identify, compare and contrast plants for survival, edible and medicinal uses.. Cattail has described and photographed Rocky Mountain plants for several volumes of his plant identification books that brilliantly include identification photos for all 4 seasons!!

He teaches at many colleges and institutes around the Rocky Mountain west.

Set your camp up in the woods along the banks of pristine Cottonwood Creek. Use our fully equipped large outdoor kitchen to prepare your own meals and snacks. Oils, spices, and teas are also provided, along with all the cooking pots, pans and eating dishes. There is an adobe "horno" baking oven, several solar ovens, and dutch ovens. Facilities include composting toilets and a lovely solar shower structure.

$195 includes camping, classes and materials, use of kitchen and bath facilities.

Moccasin Making and Buckskin / Fur Sewing and Design Tips and Tricks

2 days August 13 – 14 (Saturday and Sunday)

Instructed by Robin Blankenship

"These (boot) moccasins are made for walking..."

Make a pair of custom fit moccasins. Learn how to work with natural leather to make lovely garments and accessories. Hides don't work like cloth. How do you get the right fit? Use stone age tools to mark and cut patterns in rawhide, leather and fur. Learn the tips and tricks of fur sewing. Make buckskin lacing, sinew (tendon) and plant fiber stitching material. Several stitching techniques will be shown.

Set your camp up in the woods along the banks of pristine Cottonwood Creek. Use our fully equipped large outdoor kitchen to prepare your own meals and snacks. Oils, spices, and teas are also provided, along with all the cooking pots, pans and eating dishes. There is an adobe "horno" baking oven, several solar ovens, and dutch ovens. Facilities include composting toilets and a lovely solar shower structure.

$135 includes camping, classes, moccasin materials, use of kitchen and bath facilities.

Green River Canoe

6 days August 17- 22 (Wednesday – Monday)

Guided and instructed by Robin Blankenship

Set Adrift on the Green and Travel into Deep Time: a cold water geyser, sandy beach camping, hikes into Canyonlands wilderness, cliff jumps, stunning geologic architecture towering 700 feet above, as you float the cool currents of a river that has run before time remembered. It's never quite summer until you jump into the Green and float, arms akimbo, watching the walls of Labyrinth Canyon squeeze a small strip of impossible blue sky above.

We will explore for river bank clay and learn about ancestral pottery skills, make stone tools with a variety of rock, harvest Tamarisk and Willow and learn some weaving techniques, and learn about the Canyonlands bio region flora and fauna. Join in the true spirit of adventure. Participants bring their own food and cooler, tents, sleeping gear, dry bags, 5 gallon water container (per person), camp chairs, cooking stove, pot and pan, and eating dishes. Kitchen tables, group tarp, dish washing set up and "groover" buckets with t.p. and cleaners supplied. The tuition includes canoe rental. (Have your own canoe? Take $100 off tuition if so.)

We will meet at Green River State Park by 11am Wednesday, August 17th, load canoes, do a shuttle run, put a few miles "on down river" and camp at the Crystal Geyser.

On Monday, August 22nd, we will "take out" at Mineral Bottom and head back to Green River for a final dinner celebration, at Ray's Tavern, our river runner's tradition.

$465 per person ($365 if you bring your own canoe)
