Remember sitting alone in a doctor's office, waiting to talk about the results of a recent test or why you weren't feeling so great. Remember that closed door, and not knowing when it would open.

Well, the one thing you weren't worried about was IF it would.

Now imagine you're one of the over 5.9 million in the U.S. who need primary care at home and can't get it for a variety of reasons, most notably because they're homebound or challenged to leave the home -- and there just aren't enough providers who offer house calls.

Imagine how alone you'd feel then. And how you would just KNOW your front door wouldn't be opened anytime soon by someone who could help.

That the only way you could get the care you needed was by going TO it, which too often, for so many, ended up in unnecessary and costly trips to the ER -- and subsequent hospital readmissions.

Well, that's why the Home Centered Care Institute exists. To close that gap by partnering with home-centered care practices and providers, healthcare systems, hospice and palliative care programs, and others, in many different ways. Education. Consulting. Business Intelligence. Advocacy. And more.

So that every one of those 5.9 million would know and feel they weren't alone in dealing with their healthcare issues. And, really, since it's much harder to connect to a big number like that, instead of 5.9 million, just think of that ONE person you know or knew who could really use healthcare in the home.

Or, even better, imagine it was YOU.

Possibly older. Maybe much older.

With a variety of medical needs.

Homebound... or that getting out of the home would be an all-day affair.

With a family caregiver maybe tired and not sure what to do.

What would you give right then, right there....

.... for a knock on the door?
