Global Diversity & Inclusion Benchmarks: Standards for Organizations Around the World (GDIB) is a free guidebook helping organizations in determining strategy and measuring progress for managing diversity and fostering inclusion. It is universal in scope, designed for all organizational types and sizes, sectors, industries, world regions, cultures, or approaches to diversity.

"The Benchmarks provide a roadmap for organizations in all sectors, regardless of their approaches to D&I," says Julie O'Mara. She believes the tool will encourage organizations to strive to achieve world-class diversity and inclusion outcomes.

And what's the benefit? "High performing teams and strong organizational practices and systems that help meet organizational goals!" asserts Alan Richter.

The Diversity Collegium is particularly pleased to sponsor the Global Diversity and Inclusion Benchmarks because as organizations and societies around the world strive to create inclusive environments and approaches, a tool such as the GDIB provides important information, guidance, and support.
