Economist

The Independent Budget Office (IBO) is seeking an economist with a keen interest in public policy to join our tax and economics team. IBO is a NYC government agency providing impartial, nonpartisan information on the city budget, tax revenues, and the local economy to elected officials and the public. The tax and economics team conducts fiscal policy research focused on NYC and its tax base, generates economic and revenue forecasts, and responds to requests for information and analysis from IBO's constituents.

Candidates with a comprehensive understanding of the New York City economy and experience in tax policy analysis are strongly preferred. A Ph.D. in Economics or a related field is preferred; equivalent work experience may substitute. Experience in an applied research organization and writing for a policy-oriented audience a plus.

Candidates should be detail-oriented and able to demonstrate skills in quantitative research and policy analysis. Commitment to impartial and independent research is essential. Must be comfortable working in a collaborative environment, juggling multiple tasks, and interacting with a variety of stakeholders on relevant city issues. Ability to take initiative and meet deadlines is critical.

Salary range: $90,000 to $110,000, depending on experience.
