Did you know?

Immersive Learning resonates deeper and stays with us much longer than a typical classroom training.

Immersive learning allows participants to:

- Learn through hands-on experience
- Process the learning material on an emotional, not just an intellectual level

Our training courses are tailored to our clients' specific organisation, sector, or industry

We offer a selection of training opportunities to best suit your needs, such as:

SpeakOut

Our SpeakOut training gives you the tools to use the spoken word to deliver maximum impact. Using techniques that actors deploy to carry the expression of their voice, our instructors guide participants through exercises that will open up their voice, get them speaking authoritatively, and hence allow them to confidently get their point across in any situation.

StandUp Against Harassment

Delivered in partnership with the non-profit Touche pas à ma pote, this training enables participants to learn effective actions for how to react when witnessing sexual harassment in public spaces through practical scenarios. Participants jump into the scenarios with our actors, enabling them to gain simulated experiences that they can draw from when confront with harassment in real life.

Microaggressions

Microaggressions are often done with no bad intentions but they can have a significant impact on the wellbeing of the person receiving them and the atmosphere in the workplace. This training aims to create a space for listening, mutual understanding, improvisation and leaning into discomfort together, with a view to shaping an inclusive and collaborative work culture.

ManagerLab

The ManagerLab allows participants to practice targeted scenarios developed specifically for their line of work, tackling the most common challenges of middle and senior managers, such as:

- giving feedback
- motivating and inspiring
- leading effectively a diverse team
