

I Have Value

I have value because I am.

I have value because I am loved.

I have value because I can give love.

I have value because I am redeemed.

I have value because I am alive to His glory.

I have value because I am one-of-a-kind unique.

I have value because I am an image-bearer of Him.

I have value because I am a testimony to amazing grace.

I have value because I am not perfect, but perfectly forgiven.

I have value because I am potential-filled with gifts of service.

I have value because I am filled with love and compassion and hope.

I have value because I am His child, His heir, adopted into His family.

I have value because I am not who others say I am, but who He says I am.

I have value because I am a believer in Him –His power, His glory, His grace.

I have value because I am able to learn from my mistakes and rise above my past.

I have value because I am able to forgive those who hurt me because He forgave me.

I have value because I am here for a little while and then I am there –with Him... forever.

Do you know how many of us question our value? A lot. We question it because we believe the lies: “You’re not good enough...” “You’ll never be good enough...” “You’re a mistake...” “You’ll never amount to...”

First, your value is inborn. Second, your value is what caused Him to be born. Third, your value is what caused Him to die so you could be re-born. Had you been the only living soul on the face of the earth, Jesus would have died –Just. For. You.

That's value.

Stop believing lies - start speaking truth: I have value because I am.
