

Write Place & Write Time

Arcidosso lies in the shadow of Monte Amiata, the tallest mountain in Tuscany. This small town is renowned for its 9th-century castle (the best-preserved castle of its era in Europe), and known to be a vortex of spirituality (Merlin's Cave, a Tibetan Buddhist Temple, and the archeological site, Monte Labro are very near Arcidosso!)

The unique history of this space is magical and inspires writers and poets with its unique history. Here, every stone has a story to waiting to be told.

Arcidosso is the "write" place for you to experience Italian magic--to taste exquisite wine, olive oil, and culinary perfection. Join us and enjoy our unmatched Italian hospitality.

Springtime in the rolling hills of Tuscany is full of new life. A bevy of blossoms present themselves for your delight. Poppies confetti fields of wheat and in the vineyards, grape tendrils stretch towards the warmth of the sun. Experience Italy far from the scorching summer heat and the press of tourists. Let her countryside awaken your creativity while our workshops build your confidence.

What's Unique About EPW Retreats?

Eat, Pray, Write retreats promote your personal growth as an author by balancing workshops and feedback with free time for you to write. We organize our workshops into small, manageable groups where partners provide respectful, yet constructive feedback. As our participants share their writing they develop life-long connections that allow them to take their writing to the next level. You choose the best way to spend your time, and if you feel a flash of inspiration, we encourage you to take advantage of the ambience to unleash your creativity. And there's so much to spark the imagination! We provide rare access to private locations steeped in Tuscan history, personal tours by certified local guides and connections with the residents of Arcidosso that will warm your heart and change your life. Come embrace la dolce vita.
