The New Yorkers Podcast

To be a New Yorker...

Join Kelly Kopp and Huston "Jae" Watson for their new series, "The New Yorkers Podcast", where they set out to answer one timeless question: What does it mean to be a New Yorker?

In each episode, Kelly and Jae sit down with New Yorkers from all walks of life. By listening to their stories, they learn about their work, and explore what "being a New Yorker" means to them. Along the way, they dive into the city's vibrant culture, uncover its rich history, and celebrate the voices that make New York unlike anywhere else in the world.

Kelly and Jae's story begins the way many New York friendships do: as roommates. What started as a shared living space quickly grew into a close friendship, fueled by a passion for photography and a mutual love of the city.

As the host of The New Yorkers Podcast, Kelly brings his experience of over 10 years of social media brand building, running a successful NYC tour business and forming a community of passionate New Yorkers that listeners love to come back to. Kelly is excited to make the New Yorkers Podcast, The next step in his creative journey.

A graduate of Purchase College with a degree in Playwriting and Screenwriting and a minor in Film, Jae brings a wealth of experience to the project. Since graduating in 2021, he has worked with a production company on documentaries for film and television, produced and directed his own theater projects and short films. With a sharp eye for media and an instinct for storytelling, Jae helps transform creative ideas into compelling productions.

The New Yorkers Podcast is, at its heart, a love letter to the city. For Kelly and Jae, it's not just about telling stories, it's about asking the question with infinite answers:

What does it mean to you to be a New Yorker?

Omega Diagnostics

Global Nutrition & Gut Health Company of the Year

Leading the field in gut health

As an original pioneer of 'food sensitivity' testing, and now with over 35 years of industry experience, Omega Diagnostics continues to lead the field in gut health and personalised nutrition.

The tests Omega create, design and manufacture, provide highly accurate test results, that alongside professional nutritional advice, is the start of a process that can alleviate many issues associated with gut health, including IBS, lethargy, bloating, migraines and diarrhoea.

But Omega doesn't just create and manufacture tests, it educates too. Through a series of in-person workshops, webinars and training sessions, the majority of which are CPD approved, Omega educates and inspires professional practitioners the world over.

When you begin to dig into how Omega continues to be an industry leader, Jim Herrington, their Marketing Director explains, "We simply want people to understand how important gut health actually is and how we can help alleviate symptoms."

Omega's two main product ranges comprise of FoodPrint® and FoodDetective®.

FoodPrint®, a highly accurate, highly sensitive CE marked test, detects food specific IgG antibodies across a range of foods. The tests, for up to 207 food and drink antigens, uses a finger prick blood sample which can be carried out at home and then sent to the lab for analysis. The results use a 'traffic light system' which makes interpretation incredibly easy yet delivering a detailed and actionable set of results for use with a guided elimination diet.

Omega's other main product range, FoodDetective®, is for professional use only. This is another finger prick blood sample test. Results are available in just 40 minutes, using the proven ELISA technology which ensures accuracy.

With manufacturing and lab facilities just outside Cambridge, these products are exported to 63 countries and used in hundreds of laboratories, with tens of thousands of tests sold and analysed every year.

Looking ahead, Omega continues to create, develop and explore new tests, new markets and continues to educate on gut health and nutrition, the world over. ■

R3 Stem Cell

Regenerative Medicine Company of the Year - Global

Leading With Heart: Samantha Brechner's Vision for Regenerative Medicine

How R3 Stem Cell's President is building a global healthcare company rooted in compassion...

Samantha Brechner doesn't just run a company, she leads a movement. As President of R3 Stem Cell, the world's largest provider of regenerative therapies, Brechner oversees operations spanning eight countries and more than 80 Centers of Excellence. But ask her what drives her work, and the answer isn't about market dominance or profit margins. "I genuinely care about improving people's lives," she says. "Building a successful company and helping people aren't mutually exclusive - they go hand in hand."

Under Brechner's leadership, the organization has helped over 27,000 patients access cutting-edge regenerative medicine treatments while maintaining an 85 percent patient satisfaction rate - a track record that speaks to her commitment to putting people first.

From Marketing to Medicine: An Unconventional Path to Leadership

Brechner's journey to the presidency didn't follow a traditional trajectory. With a bachelor's degree in Visual Communications from Northern Arizona University, she initially built expertise in marketing and operations. Recognizing her passion for leadership, she pursued an MBA with a concentration in Applied Management.

Her entry into R3 Stem Cell began in the marketing and operations department, where she applied her unique skill set to build the company's brand and streamline processes. "I started from the ground up," Brechner reflects. "I learned every aspect of the business, from how we communicate with patients to how we structure our operations across multiple countries."

What sets Brechner apart is her ability to translate complex medical concepts into accessible information while maintaining the highest standards of care. Her background in visual communications enables her to see patterns and create efficient workflows that benefit both patients and providers.

Building a Culture of Care From the Inside Out

As President, Brechner oversees strategy, operations, and team development across R3 Stem Cell's international network. But her vision extends beyond organizational charts and quarterly targets. "My goal is to grow the company in the most positive and caring manner," she explains, "both inside the company with our staff and in our patient care expertise on the patient-facing side."

Every clinic is designed to make patients feel seen, heard, and genuinely cared for. From rigorous protocols to the careful selection of empathetic staff, the company ensures that every individual is treated not as a medical case, but as a person with a unique story. "Every person who walks through our doors carries their own story of struggle and their own reasons to hope," Brechner notes. "That's where our care begins."

The company's approach to patient care reflects Brechner's belief that effective treatment requires more than advanced medicine - it demands genuine human connection. Each patient undergoes a comprehensive free telehealth consultation lasting 20 to 30 minutes with certified providers, who evaluate multiple factors to craft personalized treatment protocols tailored to individual needs, backgrounds, and goals.

This commitment to accessibility extends through the R3 Heroes Program, which offers free treatments to those who serve their communities. Veterans, first responders, and teachers can nominate themselves or a loved one to receive complimentary regenerative care - a tangible expression of gratitude for those who dedicate their lives to helping others.

Innovation Through Education and Transparency

Brechner's commitment to transparency has led to groundbreaking initiatives reshaping how the public understands regenerative medicine. She co-hosts Stem Cell Genius, a podcast featuring R3 Stem Cell founder and CEO Dr. David Greene, where they tackle the questions patients actually ask. The show blends humor with clear explanations about stem cell therapies, helping listeners understand both the science and success behind innovative treatments in layman's terms.

"My goal is to grow the company in the most positive and caring manner"

Running 30 to 45 minutes per episode, the podcast addresses topics from basic science to advanced research, including regulatory differences between countries and realistic treatment outcomes.

The company is also developing a book co-written by a long-time patient, who experienced over 90 percent improvement through R3 treatments. Expected within 12 to 16 months, it will feature testimonials from around the world.

Setting New Standards in a Rapidly Growing Field

The global regenerative medicine market is projected to surpass 30 billion dollars within the next few years, but rapid growth has brought uneven quality and inconsistent outcomes. Some providers have prioritized volume over value, creating an industry where innovation often outpaces the standards that ensure it truly serves patients.

R3 Stem Cell is addressing these gaps through rigorous research and quality control. The company's research team has published ten peer-reviewed papers over the past two years on conditions including autism, cerebral palsy, premature ovarian failure, and diabetes. Under Brechner's leadership, R3 Stem Cell maintains the same rigorous protocols, quality benchmarks, and patient experience standards across all international locations - from the United States and Mexico to Turkey, the Philippines, India, Pakistan, UAE, and South Africa.

A Vision Rooted in Compassion

What makes Brechner's leadership distinctive is her unwavering focus on the human element of healthcare. In an industry increasingly driven by technology and profit margins, she brings a refreshing perspective: the best medicine combines cutting-edge science with genuine compassion.

"I believe that communication and organization lead to success," Brechner says. "But at the end of the day, it's about caring deeply for every person we serve - our patients, our providers, and our employees." That philosophy has helped R3 Stem Cell achieve something rare in healthcare: a reputation for both clinical excellence and genuine human connection.

As regenerative medicine continues to evolve globally, Brechner's vision offers a blueprint for sustainable growth rooted in values. She's proving that it's possible to build a successful, internationally recognized healthcare company without compromising on quality or compassion. For her, success isn't measured solely in procedures performed or markets entered - it's measured in lives improved and hope restored.

In an industry poised for exponential growth, Samantha Brechner stands as a leader who remembers why healthcare exists: to help people live better, healthier lives. Under her leadership, R3 Stem Cell is doing exactly that, one patient at a time, across eight countries and counting. ■

Africa Surge Protection Pty Ltd

Most Innovative Surge Protection Manufacturer of the Year - Africa

From adversity to innovation: Jason Roper's surge protection revolution

Jason Roper

Long before Africa Surge Protection became a name synonymous with reliability and innovation, there was a young man working from his mothers kitchen table with a soldering iron, determination, and a belief that Africa deserved world-class technology built for African conditions.

Jason Roper's journey began not with capital, but with conviction. While studying medical electronics, he identified a silent threat - uncontrolled power surges destroying valuable equipment across South Africa. His curiosity and technical ingenuity led him to develop the prototype that would become the WonderPlug™, a product that transformed the way households and industries safeguard their devices.

What started as a small operation soon became a movement - driven by purpose, not privilege. Roper's vision was simple yet profound: to protect people, property, and productivity from the unseen dangers of electrical instability.

Milestones that matter

From humble beginnings, Africa Surge Protection has grown into a multi-award-winning manufacturer of lightning surge and power fluctuation protection systems. The company's core products - WonderPlug™, SurgeMate™, and DB Pro™ - are now trusted across residential, commercial, and industrial sectors throughout Africa.

Jason's unwavering commitment to innovation has earned Africa Surge Protection international recognition for three consecutive years, including multiple honors at the MEA Markets African Excellence Awards and the IE100 Global Awards (2023-2025).

Each accolade reflects the company's consistent dedication to safety, quality, and performance. Every Africa Surge product undergoes rigorous testing and independent certification, ensuring reliability that not only meets but often exceeds global standards.

Behind the technology lies a deeper story of grit. When faced with imitation products, legal disputes, and market sabotage, Roper chose not to retaliate with hostility but with innovation. "You can copy a product," he often says, "but you can't copy the persistence that built it."

Evolving through integrity and innovation

Africa Surge Protection's evolution is a reflection of Jason's own growth. From hand-built prototypes to automated manufacturing and AI-driven diagnostic systems, the company has continually redefined what protection technology can do.

Today, ASP's products are designed to predict and prevent - integrating smart analytics that monitor electrical flow and alert users before damage occurs. This forward-thinking approach has positioned the brand as a leader in predictive protection, not just reactive defense.

Yet, through all its progress, one thing remains unchanged - integrity. Jason's leadership culture emphasizes transparency, local empowerment, and technical mastery. "Our growth wasn't funded by venture capital," he notes. "It was built on trust, teamwork, and tenacity."

Leadership with heart

Jason Roper leads not from a boardroom, but from the factory floor. His management philosophy is grounded in hands-on mentorship and a shared mission. Every employee at Africa Surge is seen as a contributor to innovation, not merely a worker on a production line. Roper has also prioritized skills development and community upliftment, creating employment opportunities for people with disabilities and under-resourced youth - mirroring his belief that real innovation uplifts everyone it touches.

Looking ahead

The future of Africa Surge Protection is electrifying - literally and figuratively. With expansion plans reaching across South and North America, Europe, Africa Middle east, Asia and beyond, the company is positioning itself as a global benchmark in lightning surge, and power fluctuation management.

Roper envisions a future where smart protection becomes a lifestyle standard, seamlessly integrated into every building, home, and data infrastructure. His next frontier lies in the development of AI-integrated surge intelligence systems - capable of remote diagnostics, predictive alerts, and adaptive protection - a technological leap that could redefine the global electrical safety landscape.

In 2025, Roper began a strategic collaboration with The Brill Collective in Dubai, aligning with Roper's innovation vision with next-generation AI-driven public relations, media storytelling and brand strategy. Together, they're crafting a new era of communication where engineering excellence meets digital intelligence.

Yet, beyond the technology and expansion, Jason's driving force remains deeply human: "I don't just build devices; I build peace of mind."

Pembroke House School

Traditional Co-Educational School of the Year - Gilgil - Kenya

Pembroke House School: Where children learn the art of courage

In an age of bubble-wrapped childhoods and constant digital supervision, Pembroke House School stands apart as a place where children are trusted to explore, make mistakes, and learn from them.

Set across 140 acres of open Rift Valley countryside, Pembroke is a rare pocket of freedom. Here, pupils race barefoot across lawns, climb trees in Shackland, and learn to light fires under the watchful eye of their teachers. Risk is not forbidden - it's appreciated as a core part of learning.

Headmistress Deborah Boyd-Moss believes that courage and curiosity go hand in hand. "Children flourish when they are trusted," she says. "They need clear expectations along with time and space to discover who they are and find a sense of integrity and responsibility."

Recent research supports this approach. A 2023 study from the University of Cambridge's Centre for Family Research found that children exposed to 'managed risk' develop higher resilience and stronger emotional regulation. The British Psychological Society (2024) reported that over-supervision can inhibit flexible thinking and self-efficacy, while the American Psychological Association (2022) concluded that moderate risk in childhood directly supports later-life confidence and problem-solving ability.

In classrooms, that same spirit of independence translates into enquiry-based learning, where children take ownership of their ideas and discover that getting something wrong can be the start of getting it right. Theoretical learnings come to life with Pembroke's Adventure Learning curriculum. Pupils learn to orienteer and navigate, build bridges over rivers, life rafts and survival shelters. Alongside this, they learn about how to use weapons safely, mechanics, and butterfly identification.

These skills come to fruition on their annual camping trip, when tents are erected, cooking is done over fires, and shelters may need to be constructed. Pembroke children are gently guided, yet never stifled.

The academics are every bit as inspiring as the outdoors. Following the British curriculum, Pembroke pairs rigour with imagination, supported by an outstanding Learning Support department. In 2024-2025, 42% of leavers were awarded scholarships to leading senior schools in the UK and beyond - a reflection not just of achievement, but of attitude. The Pembroke child brings confidence, an ability to think through problems, and a level of teamwork and kindness that is rare to find.

At Pembroke House, education is not about eliminating risk. It's about learning how to meet it with confidence, curiosity, and grace. ■

"Children need to learn resilience. They need a nurturing environment where they can develop the ability to face challenges and work things out for themselves.

Our role is to keep them safe enough to be brave."

Evelyn Krämer

Tax & Accounting CEO of the Year -
Steuerberatung Oettinger - Germany

Evelyn Krämer: Bridging tax expertise and digital innovation

Evelyn Krämer is a woman who doesn't just adapt to change - she creates it. A certified tax advisor since 2006, she founded her own tax consultancy Steuerberatung Oettinger in 2007. With an eight-member team, she provides her clients with a level of service that goes far beyond standard expectations: proactive advice, practical solutions, and communication built on trust.

But as often happens, true innovation was born out of everyday frustration. In her practice, new employee onboarding repeatedly stalled because clients sent back incomplete personnel questionnaires - a small but time-consuming problem. Instead of accepting this as normal, Evelyn looked for a solution. The result was Fastdocs, founded in 2019.

Fastdocs is a digital tool that simplifies and automates the entire onboarding process for tax firms and their clients. What once took endless back-and-forth emails now happens in minutes - simple, accurate, and completely digital.

Today, Evelyn leads two thriving businesses: her tax consultancy and Fastdocs, which now has a 14-person team. Her mission is clear - to relieve people from unnecessary administrative work through smart digital processes. Evelyn Krämer proves that personal expertise and digital innovation are not opposites, but a perfect match. ■

Goldie Uttamchandani

Youth, Life & Business Coach of the Year - Spain

Coaching is a compass for growth

Goldie Uttamchandani is an acclaimed bilingual coach, motivational speaker and author, renowned for her transformative work in youth development and intergenerational dynamics, giving her the experience of having coached across generations. She has clients as young as 12 and also C-level executives, bridging over five generations.

Born in Madrid to Indian parents and educated in the UK, Uttamchandani holds a BA in Management Studies with Spanish from the University of Nottingham.

Her career began with a pivotal shift in 2013 after publishing her first book, which led to collaborations with Cataluña's Department of Education, delivering motivational talks to teenagers. This ignited her passion for coaching, and she soon earned certifications in Coaching for Teenagers, Families and Executive Coaching from Escuela Europea de Coaching, in Barcelona.

With over 1,500 hours of coaching experience to over 35 nationalities, Uttamchandani specializes in empowering adolescents through workshops and one-on-one sessions, emphasizing authenticity over conventional success metrics.

Her approach challenges norms, urging teens to explore "who they want to be" rather than "what they want to become".

A trained facilitator in the Bridge model and Appreciative Inquiry, she blends mindfulness and strategic questioning to foster resilience.

In 2024, she co-founded the podcast "Mind The Gen Gap", addressing multigenerational workplace dynamics, further cementing her role as a thought leader.

Her accolades include an honorable finalist in the ICF Coaching Impact Awards for her social influence in 2023 and 2024. Goldie is an active member of the Spanish ICF chapter, delivering a message to democratise youth coaching across Spanish public schools through various pro bono initiatives.

Beyond her professional achievements, Uttamchandani is a devoted mother and advocate for the Sindhi language and writes articles about the Sindhi diaspora with an aim to spread knowledge and understanding about her cultural roots.

Her journey reflects a commitment to bridging cultural and generational divides, inspiring a legacy of authenticity and purpose.

"Coaching," she asserts, "is not a remedy but a compass for growth" - a philosophy that continues to shape her impact globally. ■

Phoenix Rehoming

Animal Rescue Charity of the Year - Hampshire - UK

2025 has been a year unrivalled in difficulty. The cost-of-living crisis sees more pets being surrendered or abandoned. It also means that less people are seeking to adopt a pet. Despite the crisis, we are doing everything that we can to support as many pets and people as possible. Our mission is to rescue dogs and cats. Our dream is that one day we won't have to.

Phoenix Rehoming was established in 2016 and has now rehomed over 1,800 pets. We rescue any dog or cat, for any reason, from anywhere. We are staffed entirely by dedicated volunteers. This means that the charity can dedicate 100% of its donations to helping dogs and cats in need.

The charity has an unrivalled ethical and professional approach. Training support is provided to every foster carer and adopter. We are members of the Institute of Modern Dog Training, UK Sniffer Dogs, the Pet Professional Guild, the Pet Industry Advocacy International and the UK Dog Behaviour & Training Charter. The team has accredited dog trainers on hand to help.

The charity has been successful largely due to the good will of some amazing foster carers who are willing to care for rescue dogs and cats in their own home.

We are proud to be supported by many local businesses who help provide essential support and fundraising. Our ever-growing network of supporters and followers gives us hope for the future.

Our goal is to continue to fundraise to purchase land within Hampshire to enable a rehabilitation and training centre to be built. This would provide us with a centre for our rescue community and volunteers, provide secure exercise and training facilities and also generate income for the charity.

We are thrilled to win "Animal Rescue Charity of the Year" in 2025. ■

Taking a different strategic approach

Strategic UK Group is an enabler: a disruptive consultancy dedicated to achieving success for every client in strategy and management.

Founded with a commitment to redefine the generic structure of consultancy, Strategic UK Group has built its operational model entirely in-house, reflecting its thorough understanding of both the strategic challenges businesses face and the new solutions they require.

The consultancy offers an authentic partnership to clients, delivering customised strategic interventions that are grounded in analytical insights and audacious thinking.

Speaking Truth to Power

At the heart of Strategic UK Group's commitment is the ability to 'Speak Truth to Power' to business leaders, CEOs, and founders of start-ups. The truth at the heart of building a business starts by understanding the CEO's vision, objectives and strategy. For a business to succeed and be profitable, understand the business's strategy.

Consultancy

Strategic UK Group consultancy introduces a fresh self-developed operational approach that involves distinctive methodologies. Our unique programme of service includes:

- Operation Deep Dive: A comprehensive analysis designed to deeply examine a firm's structure, capability, resources and management. This initiative focuses on integrating and exploring core elements to unlock the firm's full potential.

- Strategy Advice: Support the firms to unravel the complexities of strategy creation. Strategy starts in the minds of the founder and CEO of a company.

- Strategy Shock & Awe: The focus is to identify the firm's understanding of its industry dynamics and the forces driving change. Shock & Awe is to achieve dominance in domestic and internal markets.

- Management: Theories of management are the concepts and guidelines a superior can use to manage different organisations successfully running their operations. These theories offer different approaches to managing modern organisations. Management theories evolved a long time ago and research continues to identify new theories for management to benefit different sectors across different countries. Core theories in management 'Maslow's Hierarchy of Needs', and 'Decision Theory'.

- Military Strategy: Provides critical insight to successful planning execution of firm's operations. Military strategy is influenced by many factors such as geopolitical, economic and technological considerations.

Innovative in approach, these packages are action-orientated, equipping clients with the tools that implement change effectively and at pace. Strategic UK Group firmly believes that strategy should be lived, operational discipline - dynamic, responsive and integral to every organisation's DNA.

One Strategy Vision

One Strategy Vision is to redefine the delivery of strategy and management consultancy across the UK. We aim to provide innovative, impactful clarification that drive real change and help our clients achieve their goals. We are dedicated to disrupting the status quo and delivering genuine value in a competitive market.

One Strategy Vision provides a unique approach by drawing inspiration from military strategy and management. It emphasises tactics, force, and gaining an advantage over adversaries.

In a market saturated with competition, the delivery of strategy and management consultancy has often become stagnant. Firms are primarily focused on acquiring new clients, sometimes at the expense of genuine innovation and effective solutions. At Strategic Group, we take a different approach. ■

Well Polished

Franchise Cleaning Company of the Year - UK

Well Polished: Redefining Domestic Cleaning Across the UK

From local beginnings to national recognition

Founded with the simple belief that high-quality cleaning services should also be flexible and personal, Well Polished has grown from a small local business into one of the UK's leading domestic cleaning franchises. With more than 70 franchisees and over 8,000 regular clients nationwide, the company has become a trusted name in households across the country.

At the heart of Well Polished's success is a focus on people - both the clients who rely on a consistent, sparkling clean, and the cleaners who deliver it. Cleaners introduced through the network are paid above minimum wage, motivated, and carefully matched to clients to ensure a long-lasting, professional relationship.

Franchisees benefit from a proven business model, ongoing support, and the strength of a brand that continues to innovate in an industry often overlooked.

Making a difference beyond cleaning

Well Polished is also committed to giving back. In 2025, the brand launched a partnership with Crisis, the UK's leading homelessness charity, donating 1% of its monthly royalties. As Operational Director Janine Campbell explains: "We clean homes every day, but we know that for many people, a safe home isn't guaranteed. Supporting Crisis is one small way we can help make a difference."

This combination of commercial growth, people-first values, and social responsibility has positioned Well Polished as a true leader in the domestic cleaning sector - and the recipient of this prestigious international award. ■

Kelly Kopp

Meet Kelly Kopp, The New York City Kopp!

Which is spelled with a K, not a C. K-o-p-p, yeah you know me!

For more than a decade, Kelly has called the city his own, and he's made it his mission to share everything it has to offer. Through his social media channels and The New Yorkers Podcast, he guides the curious through New York's cultural events, celebrated restaurants, and breathtaking urban landscapes. And through his tour business, he offers a personal experience of the city by leading guided walks and capturing unforgettable moments behind the camera.

Kelly first moved to New York City in 2013, settling in Upper Manhattan. Though he originally planned to study criminology at John Jay College, a registration mishap (which he shares in The New Yorkers Podcast episode "Why I Moved to New York City") unexpectedly redirected his path. Wandering through Central Park with a camera, Kelly discovered a passion for photography, and soon, a deep love for the city itself.

By sharing his photos on social media, Kelly's work quickly attracted global attention, building a platform that earned him recognition across the city. His keen eye for New York's hidden beauty, paired with his signature sense of humor, has led him to become a media ambassador for the city and a participant in some of its most iconic traditions. If he is not doing live videos through his favorite neighborhoods, or talking to New Yorkers on the podcast, you can find Kelly dancing to "Thriller" during the New York City Halloween Parade or playing musical chairs in Bryant Park. ■

Michael Gault Studio

Art Workshop of the Year - Colorado - USA

A beacon of artistic inspiration

Colorado's internationally acclaimed artist, Michael Gault, is a passionate advocate for the transformative power of art, dedicated to weaving visual narratives with each painting he creates.

Michael's classical training has endowed him with a rich array of artistic disciplines, yet oil painting remains his preferred medium. Gault effortlessly navigates both representational and non-representational genres, demonstrating that a true artist can master any style. This remarkable versatility often challenges galleries eager to categorize artists, but Gault's extraordinary talents transcend such limitations, resulting in a vibrant array of genres showcased in his exhibitions.

For Michael, the journey of creative problem-solving and self-discovery is an evolving adventure, leading to unexpected breakthroughs in his artistic proficiency. He remains as invigorated and passionate about art today as he was at the beginning of his journey, committed to advancing his innovative skill set while nurturing the artistic aspirations of others. Identifying as a process artist, he immerses himself in creation, prioritizing the journey over the final product. This perspective fuels his passion and focus on the creative process, which he integrates into every workshop and class he teaches.

Having begun his teaching career over 45 years ago while pursuing a full-time studio practice, Michael now offers select art classes and workshops in the picturesque Pikes Peak region of Colorado. His mentorship specializes in perfecting the art of drawing from life within painting, and he hosts exclusive destination landscape events. Renowned for his exceptional expertise and dynamic teaching style, this highly sought-after instructor has become a beacon of inspiration within the artistic community. His personalized approach empowers each participant to discover their own artistic voice while mastering essential skills. ■

Kevin Sanjari - Security President of the Year - Paragon Security - Canada
Paragon Security - Security Services Specialist of the Year - Canada

Facing the future

Kevin Sanjari, President of Paragon Security, has been recognized as President of the Year, a testament to his enduring vision, leadership, and dedication to both people and progress.

Under Kevin's guidance, Paragon continues to redefine what it means to be a forward-thinking security organization, where innovation, education, and compassion intersect to build safer communities.

In 2025, Paragon made significant strides in leadership and technology, spearheaded by Kevin's belief that "investing in people is the most strategic investment of all." Over 30 Paragon Service Managers and Directors have participated in CPTED (Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design) and Dale Carnegie Leadership and Client Service programs across North America, developing essential communication, empathy, and problem-solving skills that elevate the client experience. This company-wide commitment to professional growth reinforces Kevin's mission to cultivate confident, capable leaders who drive meaningful relationships with every client and colleague.

Technological advancement has also taken centre stage. This year, Paragon has begun exploring the potential of Artificial Intelligence (AI) to enhance both internal operations and client-facing solutions. Early initiatives focus on how AI can improve data insights, streamline reporting, and strengthen situational awareness across our service network.

Paragon is also testing AI-driven applications in CCTV monitoring and analytics, helping teams identify patterns and potential risks faster, while producing more accurate and actionable reports for clients. These efforts reflect Paragon's ongoing commitment to innovation, using technology to create safer environments, stronger partnerships, and smarter security solutions for those we protect.

This year, Paragon's continuous commitment to improvement was recognized beyond the company walls. The organization was named a finalist in the 2025 BOMA Awards for Innovation, celebrating its leadership in developing advanced, people-first training and education platforms. These achievements are not only a reflection of Paragon's collective excellence but also of Kevin's unwavering focus on empowering employees to achieve their best.

In 2025, Paragon was also awarded the WSIB Excellence Award, recognizing our commitment to building a safer, healthier workplace for every employee. This achievement reflects not only strong safety standards, but the leadership mindset behind them - one that prioritizes prevention, education, and continuous growth.

Kevin Sanjari's leadership is rooted in a belief that innovation and empathy must grow hand in hand. Through his vision, Paragon Security remains at the forefront of industry transformation, investing in tomorrow, today. ■
