Leadership Training

Empowered Leadership Inspires Action

In the Safety Industry, we focus on the requirements, rules, and regulations that ensure an in-depth knowledge of the processes and procedures that must be followed to the letter. However, there are also many human skills that make safety leaders successful and efficient at cultivating a culture of safety among their employees. Many of these skills are often not taught in books and are overlooked in training.

The KDF Safety team has provided leadership training to thousands of safety professionals in many different industries. We have watched teams of professionals be transformed by the power of improved leadership.

We believe it is vital to develop a safety partnership between an organization's leadership and craftspeople, and we want to help you establish and maintain a behavioral based safety culture that both empowers your company's workforce and establishes a mindset of personal responsibility among employees.

Once this culture of responsibility for safety is created, employees will no longer tolerate unsafe practices, and inevitably, your company's TRIR will be lowered.

KDF's leadership training program is based on practical applications, science, and psychology, since we know every company is different, the curriculum is customizable and diverse in topics covered, including the following topics:

- Effective communication
- Coaching
- Motivation methods
- Accountability
