

Archinect

News

America's 11 Most Endangered Historic Places for 2025 prove 'preservation is about creating something new'

By Josh Niland

May 10, '25 8:00 AM EST

The Turtle, Niagara Falls, New York. Image: Skvader/Wikimedia Commons (CC BY-SA 4.0)

An update to the important annual list of the country's 11 Most Endangered Historic Places for 2025 has been announced by the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

The new list features historic buildings from Michigan, Arizona, Oregon, Texas, Los Angeles, and New York. As a group, they remind us of the rich diversity of this country, the contributions of immigrant communities, and the struggles of Indigenous tribes and other marginalized groups to protect their respective cultures from erasure.

The Trust says: "This year's list exemplifies how preservation is about creating something new." Their entries for the 38th edition of the list of America's Most Endangered Historic Places for 2025 are:

- The Wellington, Pine Hill, New York
- The Turtle, Niagara Falls, New York
- Terminal Island Japanese American Tuna Street Buildings, Los Angeles, California
- San Juan Hotel, San Juan, Texas
- Pamunkey Indian Reservation, King William, Virginia
- Oregon Caves Chateau, Cave Junction, Oregon
- Mystery Castle, Phoenix, Arizona
- May Hicks Curtis House, Flagstaff, Arizona
- Hotel Casa Blanca, Idlewild, Michigan
- French Broad and Swannanoa River Corridors, Western North Carolina
- Cedar Key, Florida