HISTORY

According to North Eastern College: Geodetic Engineering in the Philippines was created during Rizal's Regime. The first Filipino who becomes surveyor is Jose Rizal, he also a professor in Geodetic Engineering in his time. During his time Geodetic Engineering was called Agrimento Remensur.

Rizal as Engineer

Establishment of “Geodetic Engineers of the Philippines (GEP)”

The first organization of geodetic engineers was the Asociacion de Agrimensores which was renamed Philippine Association of Surveyors and later Land Surveyors Association of the Philippines. The Geodetic Engineers of the Philippines (GEP) evolved from the integration of different surveying associations in 1965.

The Society is the thirteenth accredited professional organization by the PRC, formally recognizing it on September 18, 1975
