There is a great distinction between ourselves (the Institute of Property Practitioners Namibia) being a professional body representing and protecting the interests of all Estate Agents in Namibia (similar to the Institute of Chartered Accountants to its members). Whilst the Namibia Estate Agents Board's mandate is to issue Fidelity Fund Certificates (FFC's) to Estate Agents and to protect the public against possible misconduct by the Estate Agents. We trust that it is in the interest of the public to specifically utilize the services of Estate Agents that are also registered members of the IPPN, as our members are exposed to more relevant information, constant training and enhancement of their knowledge and skills of trade. Thus, by demanding the services of a member, the public can assist us in ensuring that the property industry in our country is protected to a larger extent. Firstly you need to obtain your Fidelity Fund Certificate (FFC) from the Namibia Estate Agents Board (NEAB) that is valid for the year in which you would like to register as a member of the Institute of Property Practitioners Namibia (IPPN). Once you have your FFC in place then you can continue to pay the applicable fee and register to become a member of the IPPN. Real estate licenses, authorizations issued by state governments, give agents and brokers the legal ability to represent a home seller or buyer in the process of buying or selling real estate. The first step is to prepare and pass the Namibia Estate Agents Board (NEAB) examination. The NEAB schedules three different exam dates during each year and you need to pass this exam before you can register as an estate agent. How much does a real estate agent make in Namibia? A person working as a Real Estate Agent in Namibia typically earns around 15,900 NAD per month. Salaries range from 7,790 NAD (lowest) to 24,800 NAD (highest). This is the average monthly salary including housing, transport, and other benefits How many years does it take to become a Realtor? You can become a real estate agent in about four to six months, depending on where you live. Online prelicensing classes can speed up the process. Requirements vary by state, but the general steps are to take a real estate prelicensing course, take the licensing exam, activate your license, and join a brokerage. Is it hard to get a job in real estate? Of course, getting a license is the easy part. Becoming successful and making a sustainable income as a real estate agent or broker is hard work. In most cases, it requires a substantial commitment of time, effort, and even money. Do you need a college degree to be in real estate? In most cases, you don't require a college degree to become a real estate agent, but it does help potential career job seekers stay competitive and relevant. An associate or bachelor's degree is more than sufficient—perhaps in business, finance, or any other related field. Is real estate agent a good career? Being a realtor is great if you like houses and enjoy working with people, but it's not always the dream job some imagine it to be. Selling real estate is more work that you might imagine and, although there are some very successful real estate agents, there are many who struggle just to make ends meet. Is realtor test hard? Is the Namibia Real Estate License Exam Hard? Well, the Namibia real estate exam certainly isn't easy. Think about it this way: this exam is the only way you can prove to the Namibia DRE that you know enough about the industry to be awarded a license to practice real estate. Are Realtors in demand? Employment of real estate brokers and sales agents is projected to grow 2 percent from 2019 to 2029, slower than the average for all occupations. Therefore, their slower entry into the housing market should limit demand for real estate agents and brokers. What are the chances for advancement in real estate agent? Real estate agents working in larger firms may have the opportunity to advance to sales manager or general manager. Real estate agents may also open their own office after obtaining a broker's license. Is being a realtor stressful? The job of a real estate agent is considered one of the most stressful jobs you can have, according to CareerCast's 2010 Jobs Rated report, which analyzed the stress level of 200 professions. Is it better to be a real estate agent or broker? Brokers typically complete more training than real estate agents. Their training allows them to independently facilitate property transactions or own a brokerage, supervising other agents. Is a real estate agent a realtor? A real estate agent is a REALTOR® when he or she becomes a member of the National Association of REALTORS®, The Voice for Real Estate®, the world's largest professional association. What is required to become an estate agent? There are no formal qualifications required to be an estate agent, though experience of customer service or sales work is highly desirable. Is learning real estate hard? Of course, getting a license is the easy part. Becoming successful and making a sustainable income as a real estate agent or broker is hard work. In most cases, it requires a substantial commitment of time, effort, and even money. Can you move to Namibia? If you are moving to Namibia to work or live there for a longer period of time or if you are not a citizen of one of the countries exempt from these visa regulations, then you will need to apply for a visa or work permit before your departure. Can I retire to Namibia? While the Namibian cabinet has approved the establishment of the retirement residency programme, the nature and value of the investment requirement is presently still under consideration. According to Hishekwa, the bulk of demand for Namibian retirement residency permits came from German nationals.
