

Public Engagement Award

Rationale: To enthuse youngsters about human anatomy. To encourage future generations of anatomists.

BACA is able to make awards of £50 available to those who wish to carry out public engagement events related to human anatomy. Events will primarily be aimed at children and members of the public. Applicants should be BACA members, having membership of the society for at least a year and be in good standing with their membership fees.

Applicants will be informed of the success of their application by the meetings secretary following receipt of the application and discussion by BACA council. Successful applicants will be provided with BACA promotional material and will be expected collect feedback on the engagement event. Applicants will also be expected to provide a short summary piece (250 words) of the event to go on the BACA website.
