

See if you can see a dime's worth of difference...

We all know that there are limits on freedom. Any thinking person realizes that one may exercise one's freedom to the extent that it does not deny another of that one's freedom. That's just good sense.

I can swing my arms around all I want to, until I hit your nose. Then I have to rein it in.

Outside of avoiding infringement on the rights of another, my will controls my life, as God has ordained it.

But what's the opposite of that. Here are a couple of examples. See what you think.

Tyranny:

... being required to be subject to a will other than one's own.

Government shutdowns, lockdowns and mandates:

... being required to be subject to a will other than one's own.

Slavery:

... being required to be subject to a will other than one's own.

From where I sit, there's not a dime's worth of difference between these.

Perhaps you're aware of a place on this earth where the government is actually looking out for the best interest of the humans it's governing. I know of no such place, and it has become patently obvious that the good 'ole US of A isn't one of them.

Almost every facet of my life sees my government putting upon me something onerous and burdensome, and all in the name of making my life, my community, my state, my nation, my earth a better place for us all; and yet nothing is getting better.

I'm being asked to sacrifice for the collective and all the while (since I'm awake) watching my own life and the lives of those in the collective getting worse!

We who are awake are watching local, state, national and international bodies work all day, every day, around the world, to implement things that require you to be subject to a will other than your own.

Remind me now ... what do we call that again? Oh yeah ... slavery: government mandates: tyranny.

C.S. Lewis wrote, "Of all tyrannies, a tyranny sincerely exercised for the good of its victims may be the most oppressive. It would be better to live under robber barons than under omnipotent moral busybodies. The robber baron's cruelty may sometimes sleep, his cupidity may at some point be satiated; but those who torment us for our own good will torment us without end for they do so with the approval of their own conscience. They may be more likely to go to Heaven yet at the same time likelier to make a Hell of earth. This very kindness stings with intolerable insult. To be "cured" against one's will and cured of states which we may not regard as disease is to be put on a level of those who have not yet reached the age of reason or those who never will; to be classed with infants, imbeciles, and domestic animals." (Emphasis mine)

I have reached the age of reason, and am reasonable. I am neither domestic animal, infant nor imbecile.

Robert F. Kennedy Jr. said, "We need to love our freedom, more than we fear disease."

I agree.

Take a stand against slavery. Defy tyrants for they mean you no good, even when "your own good" is the ostensible reason for their tyranny.

Stand with us as we stand against slavery, tyranny, government shutdowns, lockdowns and mandates.
They. Do. Not. Have. Your. Best. Interest. At. Heart.
Freedom is in your best interest. This is Constitutional America. Let's live like it is.

You can even contact us for a supply of the stickers that you saw, and which brought you here.
Then you too can distribute them freely, helping to spread the word against government shutdowns, lockdowns and mandates, slavery and tyranny. There's not a dime's worth of difference between them.

An election is coming. Shall we as a people, elect and empower more tyrants, or shall we the people defy them?

God bless you.
