

UConn/Sandy Hook/Snowflake - Commentary

Adam Lanza was the shooter at Sandy Hook Elementary School on Dec. 14, 2012, reported to have massacred 27 victims, including 20 children. Remember him? Maybe not.

Since the event, Alex Jones has been the Sandy Hook bogeyman, not the anorexic, goggle-eyed Lanza. But all Jones did was ask questions and make statements that rankled certain people.

Maybe certain people want you to leave Lanza in his urn where he belongs. (He was cremated, in case you didn't know, in an East Hartford crematorium with a felonious past.)

If Lanza was the big bad wolf in the Sandy Hook massacre, shouldn't his name be as notorious and commonly mentioned as Jack the Ripper's?

Think of Ted Kaczynski (Unabomber), Jeffery Dahmer, Charles Manson, Lorena Bobbitt, among other deranged people. We all know what such names stand for. Why shouldn't Lanza's name be on the same list, on the tip of everyone's tongue?

Why shouldn't his name appear in a UConn criminology classroom assignment?

Well, because Sandy Hook.

Because Sandy Hook, now a shrine, was the perfect testing ground for how much government news people were willing to swallow.

Don't mess with Sandy Hook, unless you want to be served with endless civil lawsuits, verbally hog-tied and forced into eternal bankruptcy. Don't say "Adam Lanza" unless you want rebuke, censorship and a woke-triggered guilt trip.

Otherwise, give generously to the bottomless pit that is Sandy Hook Promise. And say nothing at all, ever again, that conflicts with the official, government-approved story.
