

Carve Your Own Story: A Beginner's Spoon Carving Class

In a world of mass-produced goods, there's something deeply satisfying about creating a functional, one-of-a-kind object with your own two hands. Join Matt Plank, owner of NorthWind Handcraft, for an immersive beginner's spoon carving class and discover the timeless craft of working with wood.

This isn't just about making a spoon; it's about connecting with a material, slowing down, and embracing the imperfect beauty of a handmade item. You'll learn the fundamental techniques of greenwood carving in a relaxed, supportive environment. He'll guide you through every step, from selecting your wood to safely using the carving tools.

At the end of the class, you won't just take home a beautiful, hand-carved spoon. You'll take with you the confidence and skills to continue your carving journey, along with the unique story of the spoon you made. It's a spoon that's unlike any other—with its own unique grain, shape, and character—created by you, for you.
