Class Description:

In Museum Maker, students will explore different types of museums as they create hands-on artifacts each week. From natural history and ancient civilizations to art, science, and exploration, students will discover how museums help us learn about the world.

Each week, students will build one exhibit piece—such as a fossil imprint, knight shield, Greek vase, clay coin, treasure map, constellation art, or totem pole—and add a simple exhibit title as they grow their collection.

The semester concludes with a Museum Showcase, where students will display their creations and share their museum experience with their families.
