Like so many, Jeffrey Campolongo had childhood dreams of being in the entertainment business. Before going to law school, Campolongo received local notoriety as host and personality of the music-television program Live on Stage. Campolongo eventually found his true calling when he became the first lawyer in his family. He founded his firm in 2002 with a vision to bring together two distinct disciplines: employment and entertainment law. Since then, he has been singularly devoted to counseling employees, professionals and small businesses in employment matters, while also counseling aspiring and established entertainers regarding various legal issues arising in the entertainment and media industries.

Campolongo is inspired by the saying "If you want peace, work for justice." "To get peace, you have to work for it," he says. "The legal system is the world's purveyor of justice. I have dedicated my career to the core foundations of justice in representing the less fortunate, the indigent, people with disabilities as well as oppressed and underserved communities."

He also helps the community through his volunteer work. He has worked with the Legal Network for Gender Equity and The TIME'S UP Legal Defense Fund and has spent time at the U.S./Mexico Border as a volunteer attorney for the Center for Human Rights and Constitutional Law, assisting with reunifying separated children. In 2019, he was elected to public office in Whitpain Township where he serves on the Board of Supervisors. Campolongo recently co-authored a chapter for the Pennsylvania Employment Law Deskbook and writes a monthly column published in the Legal Intelligencer. When he is not working, you can find him watching Philly sports or coaching his daughter's basketball team.
