October Guest Speaker

Billie Earnest Virginia Beach, VA

"The Men Who Signed The Declaration of Independence and the Price they Paid"

The signers pledged their lives, liberties and fortunes. Some paid a very high price. Billie will share some of those stories.

Born and raised in Franklin, VA, Billie's ancestral families were from the surrounding counties of Isle of Wight and Southampton. She joined the United Daughters of the Confederacy in 1994 and has held offices at both the Chapter and Division levels. She was awarded the Jefferson Davis Medal for her extensive research and subsequent articles on Major General George Pickett and his wife Sallie Her love of Confederate History and Corbell. genealogy has grown over the years to include many subjects, including tonight's program.

Civilian Glimpes

(Contributed by Compatriot Fred Boelt)

So far this year, we have gained insight into civilian losses during the war years. John Martin's farm journal and Littleton Tazewell Waller's letters to his neighbor, Dandridge Watkins Marston, have laid out a bleak picture of life on Old Forge Road. We now turn our attention to the family living at La Grange, site of present day Stonehouse Commerce Park.

Alvan James Edmund Jennings was born on July 25, 1820. He was the son of James and Mary Jennings and this family was living in Lynchburg, Virginia, when the 1830 census was taken. By the 1850 census, James had died, Alvan had completed medical school training, and he and his mother were living with his sister and brother-in-law, Mary and Ira Connolly, in Brunswick County, Virginia. Alvan was listed as a physician. Later that same year on November 27th, he married Judith Edwards Vaiden of New Kent County, Virginia. They had two children, John Melville Jennings and Judith Edwards Jennings. After the death of his first wife in 1854, Dr. Jennings married Virginia Hall Enos in 1858, and they had one son, Alvan [Jr.]. In 1861, he bought La Grange from his father-in-law, Warner Enos, and added an office and apothecary room to the main house and opened practice in Burnt Ordinary.

The war years came close on the heels of Dr. Jennings' purchase of the farm. He enlisted in Company I, 3rd Virginia Cavalry on June 24, 1861, in Williamsburg. He was absent, sick through July 1861, with no further record. However, he appeared on the post war roster for Company H, 5th Virginia Cavalry.

The family suffered deprivations from both armies. On May 4th and 5th, 1862, the retreating Confederate army took 37 hogs and 400 pounds of bacon. On May 9th, the pursuing Union army took 2 mules, 1 calf, 7 sheep plus some fowl. In June 1863, they again raided the farm and took 18 sheep, a young ox and fowl, and in 1864, on another raid, they took a tumbrel cart and gear.

And then to add insult to injury, in the fall of 1864, Dr. Jennings and several other citizens were taken as prisoners by the Yankees and marched off to Camp Hamilton at Fortress Monroe. The actual reason for their incarceration has not been established, but three letters written by Dr. Jennings to his wife have survived and are located at the Virginia Historical Society [Mss 2 J4413 b]. The first letter dated December 1st seems to have been written soon after his arrival. The envelope was postmarked on December 6, 1864, and addressed as follows:

"Mrs. Dr. Jennings, James City Co, Virginia

In care of Mrs. Alice Bailey, Williamsburg, Virginia

Some Friend will please forward [to] Mrs. Jennings"

The letter follows: "Dec 1st 1864 Near Fortress Monroe, Camp Hamilton

Dear Wife, I am now at this place. My health is as usual – cough sometimes troublesome. I room with two others from Jas. City, all well. My love to yourself, my little boys & family and friends.

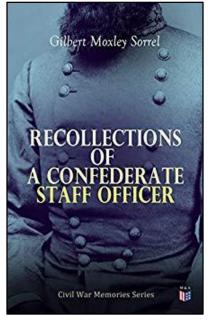

I remain your affectionate Husband, A J E Jennings

PS I hope soon to see you. A J E J"

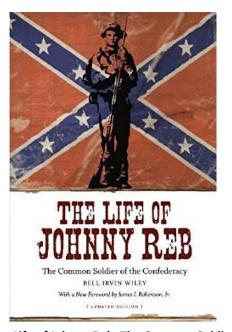

The address itself tells a tale. Remembering that Williamsburg was in Union territory and mail was not passing through, the letter was sent in care of Mrs. Alice Bailey, perhaps a relative or friend. But in smaller script, Dr. Jennings asked that some friend would forward the letter to his wife. Letters were regularly smuggled through the blockade lines just west of town on market days or by others who slipped in and out of town on a regular basis.

This letter seems to have been a first communication letting his wife know where he was, how his health was and that he was imprisoned with at least two other men from James City County. We know that Mrs. Jennings did receive the letter simply by the fact that it survives today in the Jennings Family papers. We will look at another letter from the Doctor next month.
