To live in America is a blessing. To be able to participate in our electoral process is an honor and an experience. I am grateful to have been able to be a part of it all. Although the votes did not go our way, I was humbled to have the support of many that believed in my vision for the county and its future. This chapter may be over, but my story is FAR from over.

To our newly elected officials, congratulations on your win and I look forward to working with you, and our citizens of Yavapai County.

To all my supporters, thank you. I encourage you to continue making your voices heard. My website and social media sites will remain active, to keep the citizens of Yavapai County informed of important issues.

A Note From My Son Patrick After The Election:

“Just wanted to say I’m so proud of you. You show me to never stop shooting for my dreams and to never stop working. Very happy of you and very happy to call you, my mom. I know you wanted this, and I know for a fact you could’ve made a difference in office, but God has a plan for you. Might not reveal itself right now but doors will be open ma. Things that you might have missed out on because of the position, you won’t. So many things. Anyway, just wanted to say keep your head up and show us how to keep kicking ass in life, even when things don’t go exactly as planned. Show us how to get up and keep moving forward. You’re the bomb.”

To take failures and triumphs are part of the process in being a steady, and encouraging influence for the betterment of our community, this will be the fuel to my fire.

Sincerely,

Luci Reyna Wheat
