

INTRODUCTION

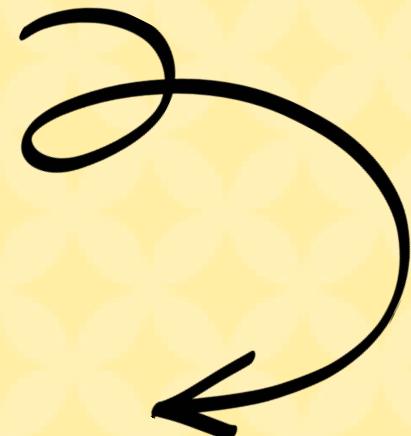

Hello Creative Thinker! Today we will be learning about the art of storytelling! We will be dedicating our whole batch into this topic. We will be learning how to write stories with not just proper grammar, but also an imaginary world filled with enchanting people, nerve-racking antagonists and many more people! The first thing we have to do though, is think up an idea...

This class will just be an introduction though!

OBJECTIVES

We all know that when it comes to writing a story, we narrow it down to one idea. How do we find the idea? We brainstorm! Brainstorming is a way to let your mind freely wander and explore imaginative places. It really just helps you loosen yourself and think up a whole new world to write about. After doing so, you elaborate on the idea. This is when you add more details and build upon your idea to make a whole story!

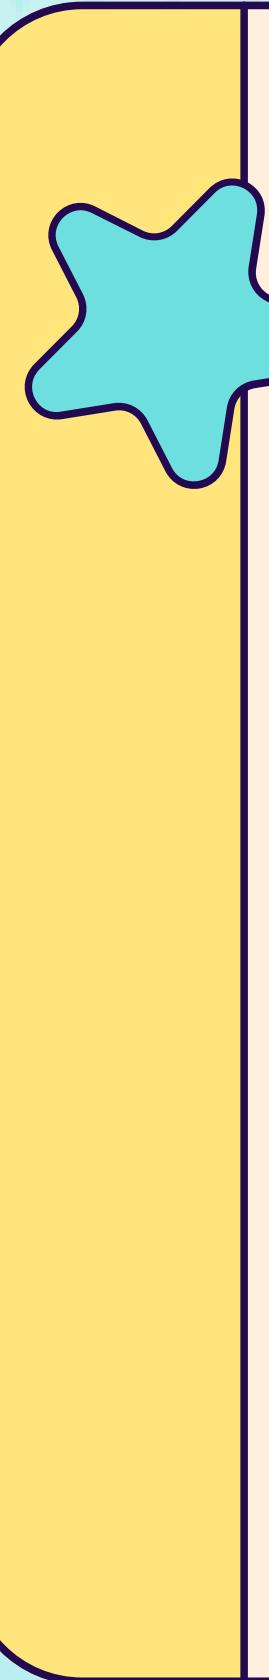

KEY COMPONENTS

WHAT MUST YOU INCLUDE IN A STORY?

Here are some things
you need in a story:

- Plot (linear or nonlinear)
- Setting (it can change)
- Characters (many kinds of them)
- Point of view
- Conflict

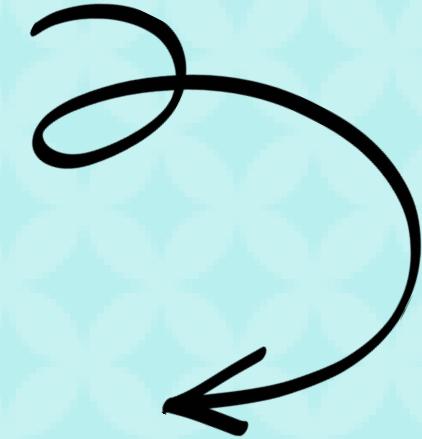

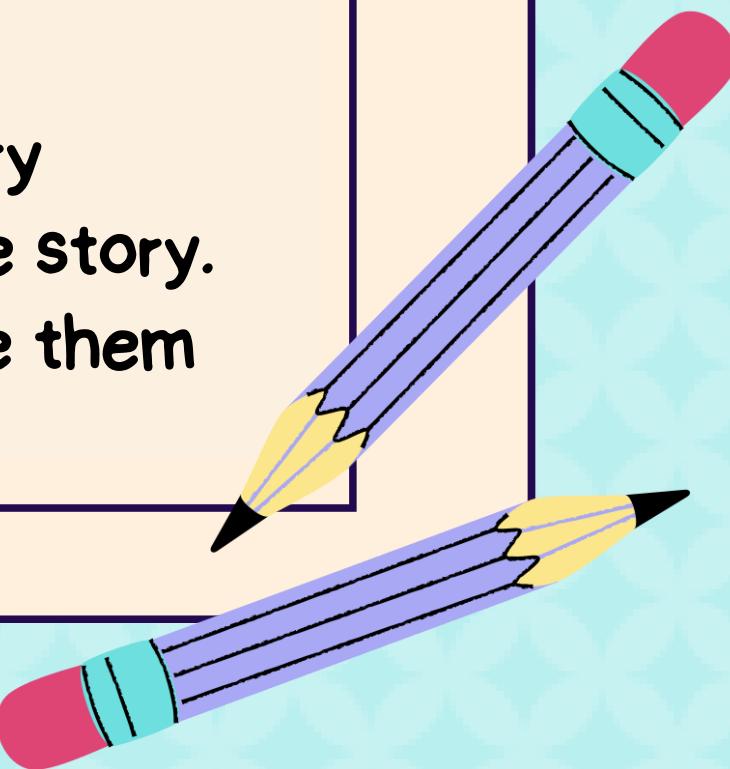

CHARACTERS

Characters are a huge part of the story.
While there are many characters, we narrow it down into these three categories.

The Protagonist
The Antagonist
The Confidant.

The confidant acts as the secondary characters or side characters of the story.
They may help the character or give them
some useful advice or gifts.

PLOT PDF

Click here to read the pdf on plot, the different kinds of plot for stories and more. This can help you understand the basic idea of stories and more! Keep your notebook open to write notes!

THINK AND REFLECT

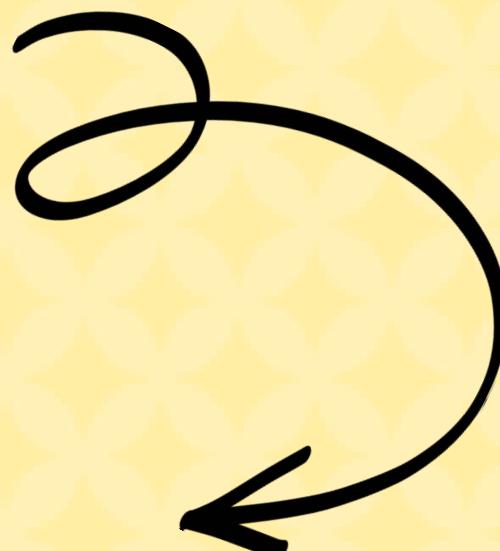

1. What is the first step in creating a story?
2. Once you make the idea, what is the key thing you have to do in order to elaborate on it?
3. What is the standard plot that we use in stories? Hint: It starts with an F.
4. What are the 3 main categories for characters?

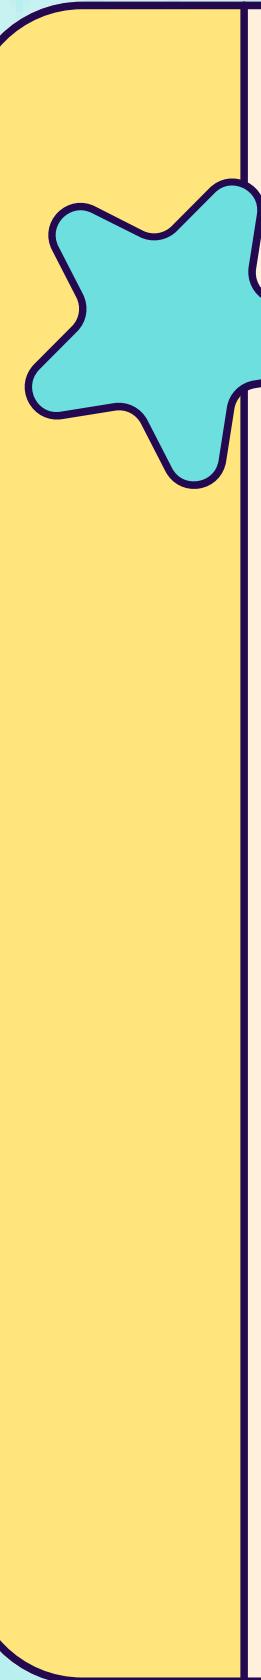

CHECKPOINT

Level 2

This is a break time! You have a 5-minute break to relax.
Then, we will start the other part!

GENRE

The next topic for our workshop session is on genres. One thing to keep in mind, when you want to write a story, what genre do you want to write it on? Here, we will be looking through what genre is by seeing a class assignment I made for my school.

MYTHIC FICTION

BY KRITIKA THANVI

WHAT IS MYTHOLOGICAL FICTION?

Mythic fiction is a subgenre in which the stories are rooted from folktales, mythology, and major legends. Often these stories are used and adapted to present those themes and enhance their stories. Mythic Fiction can include elements similar to fantasy.

ARU SHAH SERIES

- Why is the Aru Shah series mythic fiction?
- In this series, a girl named Aru lights a lamp and realizes that she is a Pandava!
- Now, as this generation's epic hero from the Mahabharata she must restore time in the world before the Sleeper (the antagonist of the story) gets to the god of destruction.

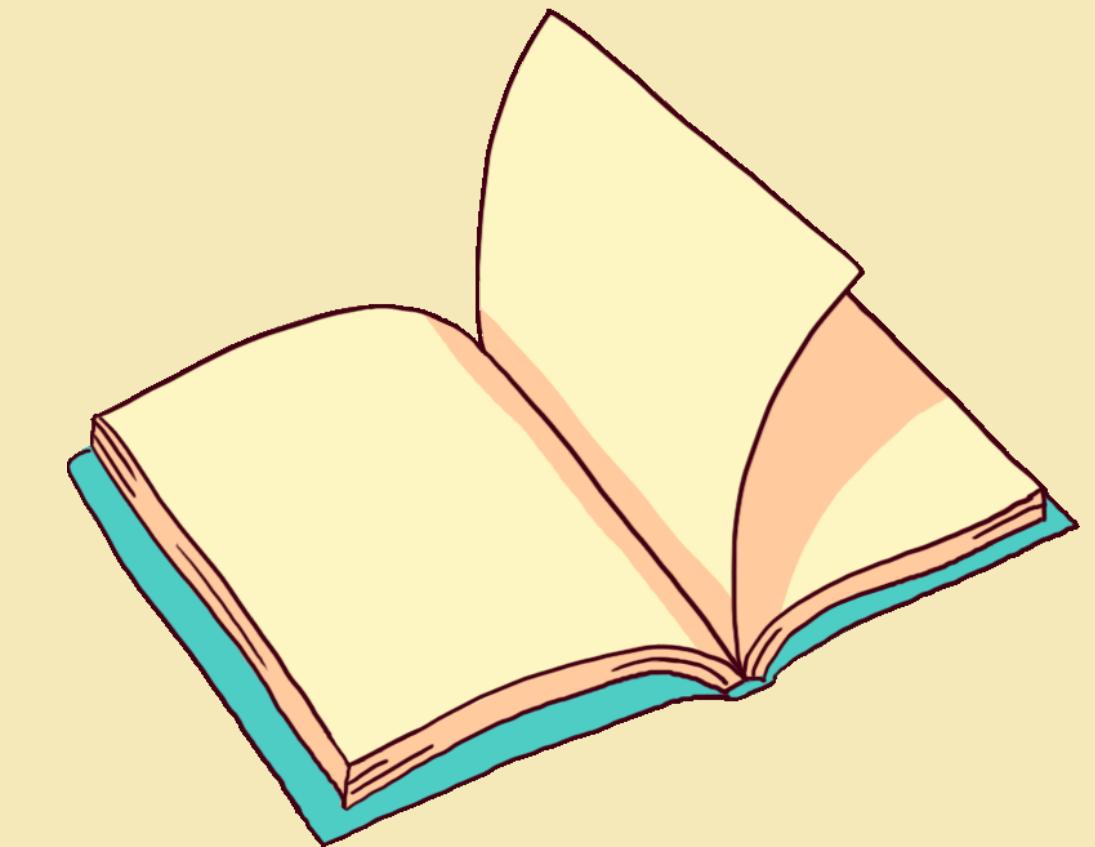

- This shows that it is mythological fiction because it has mythological elements from it.
- For example, the book shows Indian gods and goddesses like Hanuman and Shiva. It also shows characters and beings from other Indian mythology stories like Urvashi, Shakuni, and the Pandavas.

CHARACTERISTICS

- Folklore
- Fairy tales (more legends)
- Mythological creatures (gods)
- Symbolism related to myths

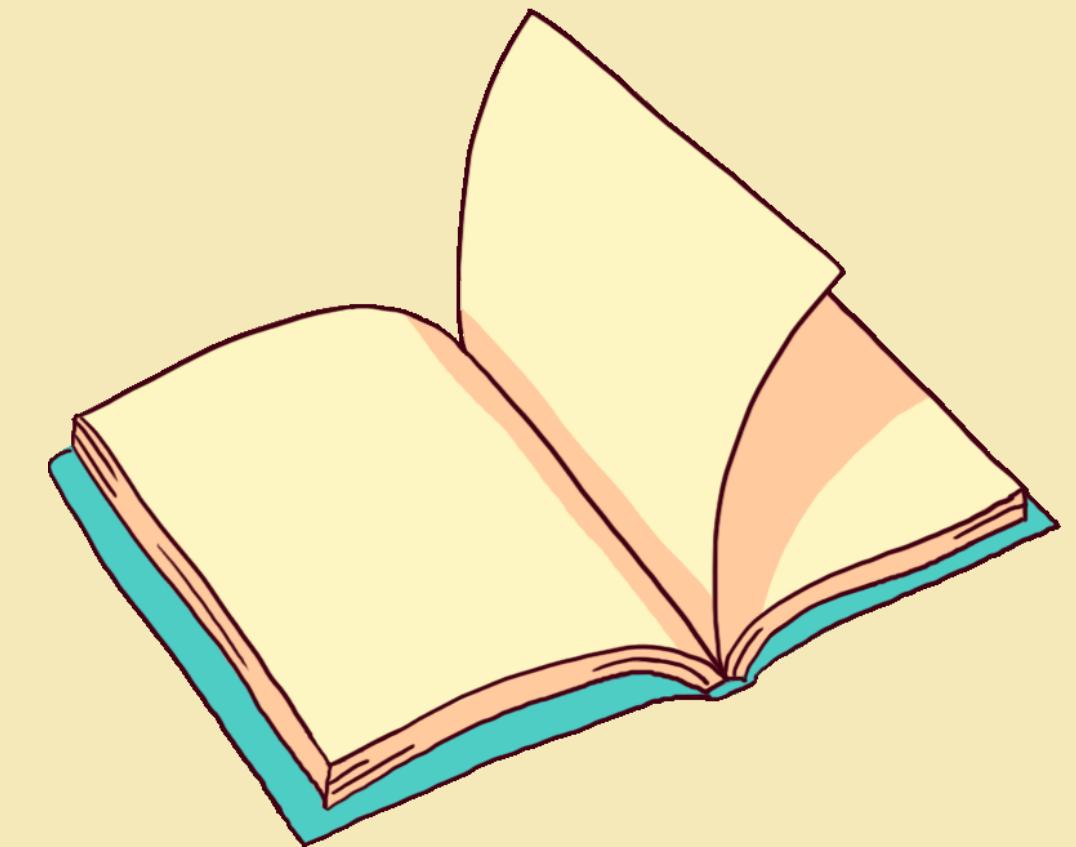

CHARACTERISTICS

Mythic Books highly rely on folklore, legends, mythology and anything that shares relevance with them. In some books, authors may modify myths and important legends to create an imaginary world of their own. For example, the Percy Jackson series roots back to Greek Mythology. However, the author's perception of the mythical characters and plot is entirely the result of their imagination. In other words, authors make mythology, legends, and folklore act as their base and then develop a plot out of it.

PROJECT GOALS

PROJECT GOALS

By the end of this trimester, we will be able to have made our own book on a website called reedsy (I am doing it on beyondskool so I can help you!)

Here is the website!

Thank you!

Hopefully we will meet soon!
