

After years of success with his wedding photography business with his wife, in 2015, Josh started a video production company called Menning Films. The first film he completed was Gretchen's Lock that had two sold out showings at a local theater.

With the success of his first short film he continued on and wrote, produced, and directed his first feature film called Unwavering. Unwavering won numerous awards at the Christian Film Festival in 2017 and is being distributed worldwide by Adler & Associates Entertainment.

Since then he has worked on several other projects and traveled to L.A. and San Diego to co-direct and film a movie with Vitaliy Versace called Beverly Hills Bandits that features actors like the Academy Award nominee, Eric Roberts.

With a packed theater and an uplifting response from the audience they began receiving requests for the documentary to be played at theaters and churches across the nation. To this day many individuals struggling with addiction have reached out for help after viewing the documentary.

In 2018, Josh filmed a psychological thriller called Beast of Our Fathers, which was released in 2019.

Also, in 2019 he filmed a faith-based drama based on a novel called Song of the Tree Frogs written by J.W. Kitson. This film features well-known award winning actors in the faith-based movie industry. Some of those actors are Karen Abercrombie (War Room) and Shannen Fields (Facing the Giants). It has been nominated and won numerous awards in various film festivals across the US and Canada including Best Feature, Best Trailer, Most Inspirational Film, Best Actor and Actress, as well as many others. Song of the Tree Frogs was released on iTunes, Google Play, Amazon Prime, and VUDU in January of 2021 and then exclusively on Pure Flix in March.
