Port Jefferson, NY

- Port Jefferson was first settled in the 17th century and remained a rural community until its development as an active shipbuilding center in the mid-19th century.
- It is the center of the Greater Port Jefferson region of northwestern Brookhaven, and serves as the cultural, commercial and transportation hub.
- Settled at the base of Port Jefferson Harbor, its first shipyard was built in 1797. By 1825, several shipbuilding firms were located there, which attracted new residents and commerce.
- In the town's revitalization in the 60's, major emphasis was placed on the town's shipbuilding past.
