

The Story

In 1776 my great great great great great grandfather Gerald Gola the fifth celebrated independence day. He was a young slave sheep herder in Malta. He escaped his destiny as a sheep herding slave and boarded the ship to New York city- a free country. While in New York, he met his wife and hunted and traveled with the vegabond to Rose City, Michigan where they settled and established Gola Cabins of which many generations of Golas were born.

In 1812, my great great great great grandfather Gerald Gola the sixth fought in the war against Britain. He witnesses the Brits burn down the whitehouse! My grandpa took pity on the president and his wife because they became homeless, so he let them stay at the "cabin in the woods". James Madison and his wife said that "Gola Cabins" was their favorite vacation spot. They stayed every summer for decades.

In 1865, my great great great grandfather Gerald Gola the Seventh helped abolish slavery. He fought in the war against the confederate army along side Ulysses S. Grant! Gerald Gola the 7th helped Ulysses take refuge at "the Big One" after Robert E. Lee brutally attacked him in one of America's bloodiest battles- "The Battle of Cold Harbor, Virginia." The victory of the union states of america was a lucrative time for Gola Cabins as it was a very popular vacation spot for the newly freed slaves! Even Frederick Douglass stayed at "the Big One" and he said that he admired the beauty of the forrest.

In 1914, Archduke Franz Ferdinand and his wife stayed at the "Cabin in the Woods" to hide from their assassin and prevented WWI!! Gola Cabins takes pride in preventing a world war, saving billions of lives.

Hoffas Hideaway was the newest of cabins established during 1950. My great great grandpa, Gerald Gola the 8th was best friends with James Hoffa. They would go hot rodding with Henry Ford and Marilyn Monroe. Even Elvis was around and they danced around the camp fire at Gola Cabins and sang songs. He even had his grand son Jerry play his talented drum riffs. It was a devastation when Jimmy Hoffa was missing one evening. My grandpa suspected where he went. To his surprise, he found Jame's Lincoln Towncar in the back yard. Jimmy must have drove his car into the pond-his favorite place. He found his body in the trunk. Suspected to have upset the mob down in Detroit. Jimmy Hoffa was murdered and found in Rose City, Michigan on 124 Shaw Lake road (Gola Cabins). My grandpa in remorse, named the cabin after Jimmy Hoffa- "Hoffa's Hideaway."
