REFERENCE

Megan Meleen joined the Horseland staff as a volunteer in the summer of 2018, from June to August. It was very clear from the beginning she would become a key member of our team during this time, and was valued, loved and respected by the staff, clients and most importantly the horses.

We are a tourist horse riding centre, operating throughout the summer season. All our staff are seasonal, and this year we made a number of changes to the structure of the business, which included inviting several volunteers to join us at various times during the summer to support our full-time staff. Meg not only provided the support we required, she also took on the task of training a number of our younger horses, and working with one of our particularly troubled geldings. Her contribution in this respect was outstanding, and has already made a positive impact on our business. She has a natural way with horses, and I also learned from her skilled equine training techniques. We feel extremely fortunate to have had Meg joining our team this year, and hopefully for more years to come.

She also assisted as a guide, and led some of our guided rides throughout the season, as well as assisting with stable hand duties, and generally ensuring the good health and well being of the seventeen horses at Horseland. Nothing was ever a problem for Meg, and she was always happy to assist and support wherever required.

Meg is a very positive and happy person. She is a breath of fresh air, undeniably contributing to the atmosphere, and well loved by staff and clients alike. She carried out her duties with responsibility and enthusiasm, often self starting, and working long hours and many times 'on call' to support the smooth operation of the business.

I have no hesitation in recommending Meg as honest, conscientious, enthusiastic, highly skilled, and caring in her horsemanship, and I'm extremely hopeful she will join us again next season, and many more after if it is her desire.

Yours sincerely,
