Troop Annual Planning Conference

Getting Prepared for the Next Scouting Year!

It doesn't take a rocket scientist to figure out what keeps Scouts in the program. They like to have fun, do really cool, challenging stuff, go places, and learn things, even though they might not want to admit it. This is what we call program, and it doesn't just happen by chance. It takes planning and preparations, starting with your patrol leaders' conference (PLC).

Ground Rules for discussion at PLC:

- It is important to respect the views of each other. Listen and don't interrupt
 - Keep focused on your task to plan your annual program. Don't get sidetracked.
 - Write out your ideas so everyone can see them.
 - Be in agreement.
1. Your Scoutmaster leads a discussion on your troop's goals for the coming year. Write the goals down and agree to the list of goals.
 2. Share the draft printed calendar that shows the date you researched with the rest of the meeting attendees. Ask if anyone has any other dates they need to add.
 3. Take a few minutes to discuss these dates and events. Once you feel comfortable with this stage of the calendar, you might even take a vote to approve the dates you have so far.
 4. Senior patrol leader shares updates from patrol leaders about what Scouts want to do. This can be the most challenging exercise in your program planning conference, so take as much time as you need. You could use the troop program features as a base for your Scout's desired programs or themes. You might take one month at a time. Don't forget to add in advancement opportunities. The flow of your troop's program is up to you and could be driven by your goals. As an example, if one of your goals is for the troop to take a wilderness trip to Alaska, some of your programs could focus on traveling to Alaska, wilderness survival, trip planning, wilderness
