Barriers Encountered	During quarter four our training enrollment numbers were comparable if not a little higher than previous times of the year, but the percentage of participants who showed up was the same. During quarter 4 Black Hawk staff had more conversations around ways we can help and encourage more participants to enroll in our trainings and make it a priority to attend. We are looking at new strategies to implement in the fall. The barrier with participants not attending sometimes is out of our control when family emergencies, illness, or other things arise, but we truly appreciate the ones that call and/or email to let us know they are no longer able to attend in hopes we can provide an opportunity for another participant to attend. We are grateful to continue to receive CVP funds to offer a mixture of free face to face and virtual trainings to meet the needs of our child care providers.
Success Stories	Quarter four, Black Hawk offered a total of 6 trainings and 4 of them were made possible due to the funds provided by CVP. We were able to offer a training that incorporated both food and literacy. As CVP knows training funds are not just to pay for the training itself, but to help pay for training incentives as well. We had the opportunity to purchase a book for each participant who attending the “Linking Literacy with Food: Read, Learn, Eat training” which allowed each participant to be able to choose a book that was shared throughout the training and take it home to implement into their program for the days to follow. One participant took the time to thank us “Thank you for offering these courses and the time it takes to prep for the courses.” CCR&R along with the child care providers and centers truly appreciate the funds that are provided to allow for these individuals to get continuing professional development to be able to learn more, implement new activities, and share knowledge with families they serve & children they care for. This quarter we also had the opportunity to offer a Black Hawk County Training Reimbursement program that was available for Child Care Centers in Black Hawk County to apply to receive a reimbursement for a training their staff took through a DHS approved training organization or for a CPR First Aid course they took. They could get reimbursed up-to $65.00 per a staff member (up-to 3 per center). We had many centers take part in this opportunity and they were grateful to be able to get reimbursed as CPR First Aid training is a huge cost to their programs and this funding helped them. CCR&R continues to appreciate the CVP funds we received. Thank you for the funds you provider throughout the whole year.
