I have been advocating on behalf of children for over 25 years. I am passionate about training, educating, and empowering everyone that sits at the 504/IEP table. The goal is successful student outcomes for all children and by educating, equipping, and training families and educators on how to navigate IEPs successfully, this goal can be achieved.

I am relentless in getting the services and resources for every child to succeed in the classroom. Over the past several years I have made it my personal responsibility and passion mission to educate as many parents and educators as possible.

My journey as an advocate began in an effort to get needed services for my own son, but along the way, I found a calling to educate, equip, and train families to successfully navigate the special education system.
