see you next semester!

We have finally come to the end of this academic year, and it has been a fruitful one! It is now time for us to sit back and reflect. Let's reflect on all the things we have accomplished. Let's reflect on all the goals we did not achieve. Let's reflect on all the things that could have gone better. Let's all just sit back and reflect.

Reflecting does more than just remind you of all you have done and have not done. It also shows you opportunities to do better next time. It shows you different roads you can consider for the future. It shows you just how much more you can stretch your limits, and tempts you to do just that.

Let's reflect on the past to make a more fruitful tomorrow. There is much left for us to accomplish as individuals and as a family. Be it students, staff, or parents, there is much left to accomplish.

As we reflect, let's also remember to reward ourselves and others. This academic/work year was not an easy one, but we persevered nonetheless. It is true what Philippians 4 vs 13 says, 'I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me'.

Let's cheers to an academic year well spent and to a better one to come for the academic year 2023-2024

It was my absolute honor to serve as your School Nurse, especially here at School Nurse Daily for the past 10 months. I had fun, and I hope to see you all in the coming semester. Have a great summer everyone!
