Five Essential Actions for your New Civilian Career

In the military, one thing you can always count on is change. Military members expect to PCS, change career fields, and deploy overseas. Though challenging, those in the service embrace the unfamiliar terrain because of the support they receive throughout their transition. This is different once you separate from the military. Though help is typically present initially, after landing your first civilian job, support is often bleak.

Veterans are thrust into their new environment without knowing what they need to do to be successful.

This presentation is designed to help service members who are separating from the military and starting their civilian careers. The talk will clear up myths, inaccuracies, and half-truths as well as provide 5 essential actions veterans can take in the first 90 days on the job to ensure success.

Learning Objectives/Outcomes

The content and learning objectives of this presentation will greatly enhance the ability for military members to flourish in their civilian careers. Specific learning objectives and outcomes include:

- Helping military members gain a profound understanding of how to be successful in the first 90 days on the job.
- Five specific actions attendees can use in their civilian careers.
- Trusted ways to find a mentor and build a superior network.
