Description:

Mount Vernon is the historic home of George and Martha Washington. Washington retired to Mount Vernon in March 1797 where he devoted time to his plantations and other business interests, including his distillery. In 1799, the distillery produced nearly 11,000 gallons, making it one of the largest whiskey distilleries in America.

Join us on a ride back in time as we travel the scenic parkway along the Potomac River to the scenic overlook at River Farm to Mt Vernon, and on to Washington's restored distillery. We will take time to stop at several scenic overlooks, admire the parklike setting and then spend time at Washington's distillery where they continue to make his whiskey today.

Our return will take us back the parkway into Alexandria's Delray neighborhood where we will stop on the square lined with shops and restaurants before returning to Mason Plaza, along a county road that has existed since the 1750's.
