

SIAMESE BROTHERS

WE WANTED

We Wanted

Cold as your hand when you come to bed
One ear to the other, laughing more than one
Cruel as Cruella a forever duel with the med
Useless attempt, at hitting the ghost of the sun

Not knowing what to hold on to, no matter the task
You wished to get well, but the hour is sour
The truth was growing whole behind the mask
Every bit of taste in your mouth, was bitter and bitterer

You wanted me to heal
You wanted me to stay
You wanted me to steal
The loneliness away

I wanted you to feel
I wanted you to be
I wanted you to deal
With your own enemy

Standing in the rain away from the rainbow
Boarding up the train, where did the pain go
Through the underground you can hear the wind blow
Waiting for nothing, looking out the window

You wanted me to heal
You wanted me to stay
You wanted me to steal
The loneliness away

I wanted you to feel
I wanted you to be
I wanted you to deal
With your own enemy

For Me

Come on!

I've got a story to tell, maybe to yell
Ring a bell working all out so I'll never have to see you in hell
Animatronic, animals when it comes to sonic
Dis ease becomes chronic, deceased, catatonic
You pay the entry fee, welcome the entropy
I have no sympathy,
knew what you signed for, wouldn't you agree
Blowing your ear drum, you come get some
I'm owning your mind, oh man you're mine!

You enter the room, you can't see the moon
You witness the monsoon,
smoking a carton, choking like a cartoon
They jumped around, they skipped a round
They stomped the crowd, until they get their head block gets back out of the cloud
You want a part of and take in the love
You tear apart the hate and burn the retina acetate
You want to ascertain, find someone to blame
No other choice than hear my voice il'm on your brain

You wanted me for me
You wanted me because of me

You wanted wanted me for me!

A Believer

You obey the father
Wake up early hour
Almost from nothing
You cooked the last supper
Made those boots
Built these suits
Now you can't remember
You've forgotten your roots

I used to be a believer
In my heart I swear, I could see her
Honestly, don't know what to say
One day the world just took my faith away

You don't know who you are You've traveled so far
To a city unknown
Cold nights, under a star

You did hurt your hands
She did corrupted your fans
A saviour took you home
It was too late for your plans

I used to be a believer
In my heart I swear, I could see her
I honestly don't know what to say
One day the world just took my faith away

I used to be a believer
In my heart I swear, I could see her
Honestly, don't know what to say
One day the world just took my faith away

Over The Sunset

You we're never there for me
The only one you love is yourself
Yours were not your priority
An afterthought, discarded on a shelf

Just glowing for the lights
To sway a version of a dream
The upside down crushed my insights
They all see what you meant, not what you mean

Flying over the sunset I'm free
From your hypoxic toxicity
Smiling under the moonlight I'm free
Of narcissistic personality

Flying over the sunset I'm free
From your hypoxic tyranny
Smiling under the moonlight I'm free
Of narcissistic personality

Globetrotting, to your treasure
You've raised nothing of significance
Soring me and soaring your measure
Coming home, when you see defiance

A whip with an invisible touch
To marry the unsolvable sum
Conceive and concede as such
A coward puppeteering just a bum

Flying over the sunset I'm free
From your hypoxic toxicity
Smiling under the moonlight I'm free
Of narcissistic personality

From your hypoxic tyranny
Smiling under the moonlight I'm free
Of narcissistic personality
