Refreshing Reinventions

By Tresa Erickson

It is not uncommon for homes built in the 1970s to have paneled walls. Paneling was quite popular then, but not so much anymore. If you have paneling in your home, do not despair. You can reinvent it with a little elbow grease. Here are some ideas.

Paint is one of the easiest and most inexpensive ways to reinvent wood paneling. You can go with any color you want, and depending upon the look you are after, you can fill the grooves or leave them unfilled. If you are looking to create stripes, for example, you might want to leave the grooves as are and use them as a guide to mark off the stripes. After a light sanding and cleaning, you will be all ready to prime and paint.

If paint is not your thing, perhaps wallpaper is. Wallpaper comes in a variety of texture and patterns. You can use almost any wallpaper you want, and the prep work is fairly easy. Just fill the grooves with joint compound, sand, clean and apply liner or sizing and the wallpaper.

Plaster is another option, but it will take some time to do. There are many types available for novices. For the best results, you should prime the paneling, attach the metal lath and apply the plaster as recommended. Depending upon your needs, you can create a smooth, glossy finish or an earthy, flat finish.

Love the look of your paneling? Keep it and give it an update with a new finish or new trim. You can sand, stain and varnish solid wood furniture piece. You can even use stencils and painter's tape to create a pattern. Laminate wood paneling is a bit more difficult, but can still be sanded and stained. The stain may not penetrate evenly, however, so you might want to experiment in a corner first. You can create any number of patterns on paneling with molding. Just cut the trim, nail it to the paneling, putty the holes and paint or stain the trim as you see fit.

None of these ideas appeal to you? Check online and at your local hardware store for further suggestions. And remember, if nothing appeals to you, you can always remove the paneling. Just be aware that what you uncover may not be in the best of condition. Installing new drywall can be time consuming and costly.

Fall HOME IMPROVEMENT Guide

HOME • GARDEN • LAWN

Home improvement projects can add value to a home and do-it-yourselfers know the sweat-equity that goes into such projects can give homeowners a greater sense of pride in their homes. But no two home improvement projects are the same, and homeowners should know that certain projects are best tackled during certain times of the year.

Fall is a great season to work on your house, as the weather is often at its most agreeable once the summer heat has gone and before winter weather arrives. The following are a handful of fall-friendly home improvement projects for homeowners looking to improve their homes.

Roof repair

Whether you're repairing or replacing the roof, fall is a great time of year to dust off the ladder and get some work done on your roof for a variety of reasons. First and foremost, fall is ideal for roof work because you won't have to be up on the roof with the summer heat bearing down on you. This can make the project move along more quickly, which is especially beneficial if you are paying laborers to work on the roof. The fewer hours workers are fixing your roof, the less you will be paying in labor costs.

In addition, fixing up the roof in the fall ensures those winter storms, be it rain or snow, won't find their way into your home via leaks. A leaky roof in winter is hard to fix, as the roof surface could be treacherous in the winter and winter winds can make it dangerous to be up on the roof at all. Addressing leaks in the fall can prevent damage to your home's interior, which can mount up if a leaky roof is not addressed until the following spring.

Window work

When the weather outside gets frightful, poorly insulated windows can allow cold air into the home. That often has a trickle-down effect on finances, forcing you to turn up the thermostat in an attempt to offset the cold air pouring into the home. Whether you need your windows replaced or simply need to patch up any leaks, a proactive approach to leaky or older windows in the fall can save you from unnecessarily high heating bills come the winter. Addressing leaky windows also makes a home more comfortable for its inhabitants.

Fall HOME IMPROVEMENT Guide

HOME • GARDEN • LAWN

Insulation Benefits

Your home loses heat in many different ways, much through the walls, some through the roof and even through the floor. It is important to do whatever you can to keep as much of this heat in as possible. Newer homes likely have more insulation, but check just to be sure and don't assume anything when it comes to your home.

Some benefits of living in an insulated home:

- Reduction of heating costs

If insulation prevents the heat from escaping and enables your home to keep more heat inside, this means that your home will heat up more quickly and cool down more slowly. The benefit is you'll need your heating on for much less time, therefore saving on your utility bill.

- Warmer in winter, cooler in summer

Insulation doesn't just stop heat from getting out, it also stops heat from getting in during warmer summer months. A comfortable home environment is important year round.

- Reduce noise levels

Maybe you didn't realize it but insulation absorbs sound so it's a great way to create a more peaceful environment in your home. Insulating your ceilings, floors and walls will lessen hearing people walking in the house or noises from the neighbors and even vehicles on roadways.

- Environmentally friendly

If less heat is escaping from your house, then the use of less heat will help reduce the need for fossil fuels. Translation, you now have an environmentally friendly home.

Although the initial costs of insulation are a factor, the impact of saving money long-term should be a consideration. What could be more appealing than saving money while having a more comfortable and peaceful home?

EVERY DAY, NEBRASKA EXAMINER journalists work tirelessly to hold government officials to account and report on how state policies affect Nebraskans – and there could hardly be a time when such journalism is more crucial. Guiding our newsroom is a simple command: Dogged. Principled. Dedicated to Nebraska news. Nebraskans want accountability from their elected officials and government. They want to know whether their tax dollars are being well-spent, whether state agencies and local governments are responsive to the people and whether officials, programs and policies are working for the common good. The Nebraska Examiner is a nonprofit, independent news source committed to providing news, scoops and reports important to our state..... 10ctf

TOP FARM SAFETY TIPS

Buy a rollover protective structure (ROPS) for older tractors. If an approved ROPS is not available, avoid using that tractor or consider trading or selling it through a local dealer.

Replace all missing power take-off and rotating equipment shields. Shut off power equipment before leaving the operator's station.

Check that lights, flashers and reflectors on machines work properly. Always use them when traveling on roadways.

Replace "slow moving vehicle" emblems that aren't clean and bright.

Inspect and repair farm machinery before the busy season. A well-maintained machine will operate more efficiently and reduce the chance of an injury.

Use proper equipment and procedures when hitching and unhitching implements.

Never enter a manure pit, grain bin or silo without following confined space entry procedures. The gases and materials in these structures kill farmers every year.

Ensure that all workers receive specific instructions on their tasks and the machines they are operating. Be sure they read and understand all operational procedures in the owner's manual.

Take time to learn basic first aid, CPR and emergency response.

Do not assign jobs to children unless they are physically, mentally and legally ready to perform the job safely, follow directions and can respond to unexpected situations. This may mean waiting until kids are at least 16 years of age.

SAFETY FIRST AVOID THE WORST

National Farm Safety & Health Week

September 22-27, 2025

Life on the farm is busy, especially in the fall, and hazards can crop up anywhere. Farming continues to be one of the most dangerous industries in the country. For this reason, the third week of September has been recognized as National Farm Safety and Health Week. This annual promotion initiated by the National Safety Council has been proclaimed as such by each sitting U.S. President since Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1944. National Farm Safety and Health Week is led by the National Education Center for Agricultural Safety (NECAS), the agricultural partner of the National Safety Council.

FARM SAFETY FACTS

Chemicals

- 50% of poisoning cases from chemicals (household and farm) happen with children under six years of age.
- Always wear appropriate Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) when working with chemicals.
- Chemicals can enter your body through your skin, eyes, ears, nose and mouth.
- Rinse affected areas immediately after chemical exposure and seek medical attention if needed.
- For questions around chemical exposures have the label ready and call your local Poison Control Center at 1-800-222-1212.

Water

- Drowning is a farm accident that is often forgotten.
- Take water safety precautions by roping or fencing off areas such as lagoons and ponds.
- Cisterns should have guards or covers. If they are non-operating, they should be filled.
- Take caution around irrigation, water and electricity. They are a dangerous combination.
- Provide machine guarding and lockout/tag out procedures around motor drive shafts and pivots that can cause entanglement.

Start your harvest with a look up

Today's farming operations involve bigger equipment, which can make you more productive. However, failure to notice overhead power lines can be a deadly oversight. This harvest season, remember to look up and look out for overhead power lines.
