February Is Children's Dental Health Month

"Decay or premature loss of baby teeth isn't a big deal since these teeth are going to fall out anyway, right?" WRONG.

- Fact: Premature loss of baby teeth can affect the spacing of permanent teeth, potentially increasing the need for orthodontic care.
- Fact: Tooth decay can cause children pain, and can also lead to infections.
- Fact: Tooth decay can stop kids from eating healthy foods and negatively impact nutrition.
- Fact: Premature loss of front baby teeth can impede speech.
- Fact: Poor dental hygiene habits often continue into adulthood.

More than 40%
of children have tooth decay by the time they reach kindergarten.

- American Academy of Pediatrics

5 Ways to Prevent Decay

1. Avoid giving babies and children high-sugar drinks and foods.
2. Fill baby bottles with milk, water or formula, not fruit juices or soft drinks.
3. Don't put babies to bed with a bottle, particularly one containing anything other than water.
4. Never dip pacifiers in anything sweet like sugar, honey or syrup.
5. Begin teaching children to drink from a cup instead of a bottle by age one.

A Childhood Dental Timeline

Dental visits typically are bi-annual events to maintain oral health. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommend a dental visit for everyone at least once a year, but some people may need to go to the dentist more frequently. Dentists do more than offer a polishing and pat on the back each visit. Brushing and flossing can remove a lot of bacterial film and plaque on teeth, but not all of it. Dental visits help remove it more thoroughly. Dental visits also give dentists a chance to spot signs of dental and oral health problems, offers Penn Dental Medicine. Dentists look for signs indicative of oral cancer and other cancers. Dentists also offer guidance about generalized oral care. The importance of visiting the dentist cannot be overstated. And dental checkups are something that both children and adults should participate in regularly. Parents may wonder when they should begin to focus on oral hygiene for their children. This timeline can help guide the process.

Before Teeth Erupt

Children are not born with teeth, but keeping their mouths clean is still important. From birth to the arrival of the first tooth, experts recommend gently wiping your baby's gums, tongue and inner cheeks with a damp washcloth or gauze after feeding to remove bacteria and prevent plaque formation. This helps a baby grow accustomed to the sensation of oral care.

The First Tooth Arrives

The Better Health Channel says the first tooth usually appears around six months of age. When this occurs, you should brush the tooth with a soft children's toothbrush and water twice a day. Speak with a pediatrician before using fluoride toothpaste at this time, as there are conflicting recommendations. As more teeth erupt, use a pea-sized amount of fluoride toothpaste and help toddlers and preschoolers learn to brush their own teeth. The American Dental Association says parents should supervise the brushing process until children are around age seven or eight, when they'll have the dexterity and skill to handle the task alone.

Visiting The Dentist

Stanford Children's Health advises parents to bring their child to the dentist for a first dental visit by 12 months of age, or within six months of the first tooth erupting. During this visit, the dentist will advise about baby bottle tooth decay, infant feeding practices, teething, pacifier use, and finger-sucking habits. Children typically are advised to see a dentist every six months, just like adults. It is essential that parents emphasize strong oral health care skills so kids grow accustomed to visiting the dentist at an early age. This can set children up for a lifetime of oral health.

- ✓ Quality Programs
- ✓ Quality Service
- ✓ Quality Care

In the farming profession, a common denominator in realizing financial goals is almost always crop yield. In today's agricultural environment, assurance that yield expectations can be met consistently is essential. Agricultural Services, Inc. develops "Hi-Yield" fertility programs, that are specific to individual fields, and then sees those programs through to harvest.

Tips on How to Write A Classified Ad That Sells

1. Use a KEYWORD. This immediately tells the reader exactly what it is you have to sell.
2. Make your description CLEAR and FACTUAL. State the year, make, model, color, size and tell what condition the item is in. Also state the special features.
3. State the PRICE. Successful classified advertisers have learned that the price in an ad helps increase the chances for results.
4. If there's a genuine sense of URGENCY, so say. The words, "We're Moving" or "Must Sell Fast" suggest that readers respond immediately.
5. Include your PHONE NUMBER. Classifieds get results fast and often generate immediate sales. If you cannot be available to answer the phone at all times, be sure to specify special calling times such as "after 6 p.m." or "before 11 a.m."
