The Texas Whip is an offshoot of the West Coast Swing. Simply called "The Whip" at Garner, the dance was unique to the geographic triangle formed between Garner, Houston, and Dallas - where it was known as the Push, particularly around North Texas State (now UNT). It uses very little floor space but packs a lot of hip action and innuendo. It has none of the Jitterbug's enthusiastic acrobatics and the Whip fit the 1960s "Big Chair" style music perfectly.

Dancing "The Whip" at Garner State Park, as explained to Rick Archer at Houston's SSQQ Dance Studio by Chuck Williams - who danced The Whip at Garner 1961-1966.
