RATIONALE & PURPOSE

The Tri-State Center for Community Action finds its purpose in the need for more faith-based organizations and volunteers to be invested in the development of their communities. To this end, we operate for the benefit of clients who desire the opportunity for a dignified, structured, and empowering approach to self-actualization.

The potential and needs of the whole person are considered in our programs to engage our clients, explore their personal journey, and empower them to uplift themselves and their family with resources we provide either uniquely or in collaboration with our partners.

Many individuals who desire and seek personal development may not know where to turn for relevant information and help. Thus, we seek to understand the needs of our clients and match their goals with the tools and resources that are available in the community.

HOW WE WORK

Our method is two-fold:

1. First, we train and equip our partner churches in the art of effective community work to discover and meet the needs of our clients, while preserving the sacredness of their dignity.
2. Second, we secure funding to support personal and family improvement initiatives in collaboration with our partners.
