

PNM PERSONALITY SLIDE EXAMPLES

2 0 2 4 T E X A S C H R I S T I A N U N I V E R S I T Y
P A N H E L L E N I C R E C R U I T M E N T

HELLO I'M

Olivia Kollias!

TELL US WHAT YOU VALUE, STAND FOR, AND/OR ARE PASSIONATE ABOUT.

- The value I am most passionate about is putting others first. This means caring deeply for my friends and being there for them whenever they need support. By valuing selflessness and kindness, I strive to live a life of grace and integrity, creating a positive impact on those around me.

WHAT ARE YOU LOOKING TO GAIN FROM YOUR COLLEGE EXPERIENCE AT TCU?

- At TCU, I am looking to gain independence and learn how to thrive on my own. I hope to form genuine connections and immerse myself in academic growth. Through new experiences and challenges, I aim to become the best version of myself, making the most of every opportunity to grow and learn.

Hey, I'm ELLA Fischer

Of all the experiences or accomplishments you listed on your resume, which two were most important to you and why?

My junior year, I raised 60 thousand dollars for blood cancer research. Throughout this process I created and guided a team to help raise money for the campaign. This process taught me how to ask companies for money, leadership skills, and time management. Additionally this campaign was near and dear to my heart. My grandmother passed away from blood cancer and this was my way carrying on her legacy and fighting for something that needs more attention.

One experience that is also most important to me was my mission trip Ethiopia. This trip has changed my life in so many ways. Something big that I learned on this trip was what true happiness looks like. You don't need physical or tangible things to make you happy. I also have found the importance in advocating for orphans and how much help a lot of them need. I saw some of the hardest things on this trip but I am forever changed and I have become a better person from that.

Which three qualities do you look for in a friend and which three qualities would your friends list to describe you?

The following qualities can always be found in the people that I love and admire the most someone who is easygoing, sincere, and sociable. My mom taught me the importance of being easy going. By this I mean, an easygoing person would most likely be acceptable to change and ready to take on new challenges without having a plan. It is important to be in a relationship with a friend that is sincere. If they do not have this quality the relationship will not be as authentic. Lastly being sociable is important because you want someone that is willing to meet new people and create new memories with you.

The three words my friends would describe me as are spontaneous, genuine, and positive. I am someone who is always excited about the next adventure, even if it isn't planned. I am the type of person who many of my friends come to when they need someone to listen and guide them. I envy people who look for the positive light out of situation. More specifically, I often try and focus on the good because otherwise dwelling on a situation only makes me unhappy. All the qualities listed above are things I look for in my friends and see in myself.

KATIE HARNEN

1) What are you looking to gain from your experience at TCU and in a Panhellenic sorority?

I am ready to embrace all TCU has to offer and anticipate being active in the TCU community. I hope to gain the education and experiences that will prepare me for medical school. Although education comes first, I am thrilled with the possibility of meeting lifelong friends. I firmly believe lasting friendships can be formed through sororities. What I am looking for in a sorority is an affectionate and energetic group of girls that support one another through good times and bad. I want to surround myself with friends that bring out the best in me and open my eyes to new experiences. I am going into rush open minded and I am ready for all the exhilarating moments this process has to offer!

2) Of all the experiences or accomplishments you listed on your resume, which two were most important to you and why?

The summer entering my senior year of high school, I was given the opportunity to serve at Preston Taylor Ministries in West Nashville. After a rigorous interview process, I was one of eight students chosen to serve at a non-profit for six weeks. I was honored to help shape the lives of young children, using my talents to glorify God. My junior year, I was selected to be a part of The National Honor Society. This invitation meant so much to me because after not receiving this honor my sophomore year, I was determined to succeed in my academics and took rigorous classes to improve my chances of selection into NHS.

Which three qualities do you look for in a friend and which three qualities would your friends list to describe you?

Three qualities I look for in a friend is someone who is adventurous, ambitious, and supportive. I love having friends that are adventurous because they inspire me daily to try new things. Ambition is also important in a friend. I love to be surrounded by goal oriented people that inspire me to reach my greatest potential. Lastly, I value friends that are supportive. Friends in college are your family away from home and should be there for you in both your highest moments and your lowest.

The three qualities my friends would list to describe me would be genuine, caring, and well-rounded. In everything I do I always try to be my most authentic self. I also always try to be supportive and present for every person in my life, whether it's showing up to an event or just listening to them when they need to talk. Finally, they would describe me as well-rounded. I have a variety of hobbies and interests and love learning how to do new things!

Sterling Soto

Tell us what you value, stand for, and/or are passionate about!

One thing that I am extremely passionate about is being intentional in every aspect of my life! Growing up, the conversations that impacted me most were the ones where I could tell the other person genuinely cared about me and how I was doing. I realized that I wanted to be that person in not only my friends and families lives, but also every person I meet. Showing people in your life how much you care about them and what they have to say strengthens that relationship for the better! I've learned that being intentional is one small thing that can make a huge impact!

Intentionality is a perfect way of being there to put a smile on someones face

Virginia Caldwell

What are you looking to gain from your college experience at TCU?

...

Which three qualities do you look for in a friend and which three qualities would your friends list to describe you?

...

SOPHIA

Tell us what you value, stand for, and/or are passionate about.

NELSON

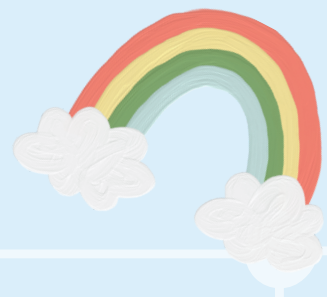

I am passionate about kindness and treating every human being you encounter with respect and intentionality. Throughout my high school years, I learned that people are going through unimaginable battles that you may never know, and it should be standard to show grace and be kind. Showing yourself kindness is extremely important as well. I am passionate about self-love and having pride in my accomplishments and how far I have come. Taking a moment out of each day for myself and others motivates me and helps me find something new each day to live for.

Which three qualities do you look for in a friend and which three qualities would your friends list to describe you?

I surround myself with people who are down-to-earth, authentic, and light-hearted. I value a friend who will be honest with me, whether it is good or bad, and someone who never hides their true feelings, ideas, or interests. Often, parts of life can get heavy, and I feel supported by my friends by not taking every moment super seriously because mistakes and challenges make us who we are. My friends describe me as empathetic, supportive, and a jokester. I always like to check in with my friends and see what they're going through because no one should ever be faced with a problem alone. I use humor and empathy to give support and grace to my friends, and I know they would give it back to me.

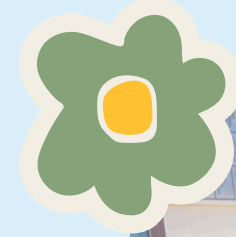

Bella Zindel

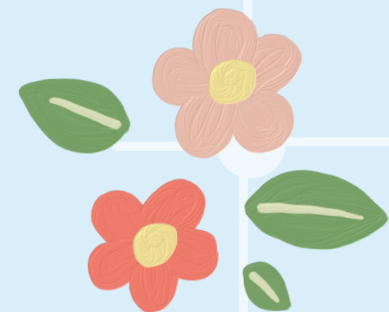

What are you looking to gain from your college experience at TCU?

I am looking to gain lasting friendships and make meaningful connections. I want to immerse myself in the vibrant campus community, participate in various activities, and engage with diverse groups of people. Building strong relationships with peers, professors, and mentors is important to me as it will enrich my academic and personal growth. I aim to create a network of supportive and inspiring individuals who will be part of my journey during and beyond my time at TCU.

Tell us what you value, stand for, and/or are passionate about...

I am passionate about giving back to the community, whether it be through leadership, philanthropy, or simply being someone to talk to. I value the importance of making a positive impact and believe that small actions can create significant change. I stand for kindness, inclusivity, and the power of collective efforts to improve the lives of others. By engaging in service and supporting those in need, I strive to foster a sense of belonging and support within the community.

K

Y

DALY PEDERSEN

I

E

What are you looking to gain from your experience at TCU and in a Panhellenic sorority?

—> Throughout high school I held various leadership positions within my school community, all experiences I highly enjoyed. I love getting to meet new people, learning their stories, connecting, and helping. I believe life is all about those experiences and through this experience at TCU I am looking to gain more leadership experience, meaningful connections, and deeply rooted friendships. I know that by being involved in this community I will be surrounded by strong and passionate women and, with that, will have the support to achieve my dreams as I support them on the path to theirs. I desire to be pushed to new limits, create lasting memories, and leave a lasting impact at TCU and in the Panhellenic community, all while further developing the best version of myself.

Tell us what you value, stand for, and/or are passionate about.

—> I had amazing school bus drivers when I was in elementary school, one in particular that had called me “Smiley Kylie” and ever since, that nickname has stuck with me. I truly think that a smile could change a life and I witness this become true every time I volunteer with All-Stars, an organization that provides a place of belonging centered on fun, friends and faith for friends with developmental disabilities. I am very passionate about my faith and center on helping those that Jesus would. Jesus says that when we care for the less fortunate we are in fact caring for Him. I also have a special place in my heart for these friends as my mom had a sister with down syndrome, and although I never met her, I live in her honor.

