

Macy Barnhill

- Of all the experiences or accomplishments you listed on your registration form (or resume if we are able to collect them), which two were most important to you and why?

One of the most important accomplishments on my resume is PALs which is a daily tutoring program through my high school. I got to tutor a student every morning during my senior year at elementary schools in my hometown. This experience not only taught me how to build connections and teach younger children, but also inspired me to choose my major, Speech Pathology. The next most important accomplishment on my resume was being on the Executive Council. I had the opportunity to work on projects such as guest speakers, prom, fish camp for incoming freshmen, and many other projects. This leadership opportunity led me to make some of the best connections and also gave me great leadership experience that I can use during my time at TCU.

- Which three qualities do you look for in a friend and which three qualities would your friends list to describe you?

Three qualities I look for in my friends are honesty, supportiveness, and being adventurous. My friends would describe me as caring, spontaneous, and trustworthy. I would consider myself very caring and kind to all of my friends. I love to make people happy and truly care for each of them. I am also very spontaneous and love to travel or experience new things!

What are you looking to gain from your experience at TCU in a Panhellenic sorority?

In my experience in a Panhellenic sorority at TCU, I hope to gain meaningful connections and friendships that help me grow as an individual. I want to be surrounded by strong women who I look up to and see as both close friends and role models. I want to be pushed academically and personally while also encouraging the women around me to do the same. I believe that by being involved in a Panhellenic sorority at TCU, surrounded by such incredible and high-achieving women, it is possible to make a lasting impact on the Panhellenic and TCU community. At the end of my four years at TCU, I hope that I can look back and confidently say that I made a positive difference alongside the sisters I find in a Panhellenic sorority.

Maddie Miyasaki

Of all the experiences you listed on your resume, which two are most important to you and why?

The two accomplishments on my resume that are most important to me are my time spent as a Camp HOPE Counselor where I mentored young kids who were victims of domestic abuse and violence, and my experience as a Rho Gamma during TCU Panhellenic Formal Sorority Recruitment. These two experiences are so important to me because each experience was a time where I got to take on the role of a leader and a mentor while also forming meaningful and lasting connections. Alongside this, I gained valuable skills in leadership, communication, and organization. I believe these two experiences shaped me the most into the person I am today, and thus have influenced me in many ways.

Cassandra Trosino

What are you looking to gain from your experience at TCU and in a Panhellenic sorority?

There are so many things I am hoping to get out of these next four years... At TCU, I want to become the absolute best version of myself. I want to surround myself with people, places, and experiences that challenge me to get out of my comfort zone and learn more about myself and my goals, as well as create joy in all circumstances. This is why I signed up to go through Panhellenic Recruitment – I hope to find a built-in community of independent, compassionate women who will encourage me in the direction of my best self while exposing me to new opportunities to get involved on campus, help others, and do good for the Fort Worth community.

FUN FACT:

I love quality, unique cuisine and want to own a farm to table restaurant when I am older!

Of all the experiences or accomplishments you listed on your resume, which two were most important to you and why?

Of all the experiences listed on my registration form, there are two that have completely transformed who I am today. This last year I was tasked in one of my classes to find a creative way to positively influence the world. Alongside two of my friends (pictured to the right), we decided that we wanted to focus on addressing the global water crisis. By fundraising for the nonprofit organization charity: water, we set a goal of gathering $50,000 to bring 1,250 people in developing nations sustainable access to clean drinking water. We currently have raised almost $30,000 to bring an estimated 723 people this right, and we will continue to find ways to support the organization even after our donation page closes. This project has shown me the immense value in seeking opportunities both big and small to help others, no matter the circumstance. I can't wait to continue to find ways to work with other people and give back to communities in the same way so many have given to me! The second experience on my registration form that has radically transformed who I am today is as a result of my membership in the Neeley Leadership Program (NLP), a highly competitive three-year business program with a cohort of 29 other driven, passionate students. This group has become like a second family to me, and they have been pivotal in showing me that there is no "right" way to live a successful and joy-filled life.

GRACE AMATO

Which three qualities do you look for in a friend and which three qualities would your friends list to describe you

Trustworthy, consistent and encouraging are three words I believe my friends would use to describe me. In others, I look for people I can be myself around, friends that are going to celebrate me while helping me grow to be the best version of myself. Friends I can have a dance party with, cry over what God is doing in our lives and friends that I can get a stomach ache from laughing with. I am the friend that loves to listen to other people process and be there for them. I am the friend that loves to make everyone dinner and host just because it makes others feel loved. I am very committed to my friends and the things I am involved in. When I say yes, it is 100%, and not any less.

Tell us what you value, stand for, and/or are passionate about.

I am very passionate about Jesus and the way my relationship with God has transformed my life. I have grown so much from freshman year to now senior year all because of the experiences I have had and the change in values and what I see as meaningful and important now compared to freshman year. I see that there is so much more to life than myself and what I do, but what God is doing in my life and how I can love others well. Making an impact on others and sharing the love of Jesus is something I am so passionate because I want to look and act more like Jesus by caring for and loving others just as Jesus loves me. This is one reason I want to be a nurse because I feel so equipped to care for others and show them grace and mercy the way they desire while they are in pain.

