Innovative mental health clinic AwareHub expands its services to Bundaberg, offering effective and affordable Transcranial Magnetic Stimulation (TMS) treatments.

AwareHub, a bespoke mental health clinic pioneered by renowned psychiatrist Dr. Lisa Myers, is thrilled to announce the opening of its new treatment centre in Bundaberg.

This expansion brings the revolutionary TMS therapy to the region, providing a proven alternative for clients dealing with depression, anxiety, OCD and other mental health conditions.

TMS is also used to manage chronic pain, and other neurological conditions.

“TMS is a safe, effective, and affordable treatment,” said Dr Myers.

“For clients who haven’t responded to traditional treatments for depression, anxiety, and OCD, TMS offers an alternate solution.”

The decision to open a clinic in Bundaberg came naturally for Dr. Myers, who has been visiting the area frequently over the years.

“I am passionate about mental health and helping people in areas of need.

“I always had a desire to take our TMS service regional, and so, Bundy was a logical first step for us.

“We have enjoyed wonderful support from the Friendlies Hospital in setting up our services in Bundaberg.”

The demand for mental health services in Bundaberg has been consistently high, a trend noticed by Dr. Myers during her consultations in the area over the past year.

“TMS is a unique treatment that can manage a wide range of mental health and neurological conditions.

“Although TMS is prescribed and supervised by a psychiatrist, the treatment is largely administered by a trained nurse, allowing us to help a greater number of people.”

The expansion also includes the appointment of new local nurses who will screen clients referred by their GP and/or psychiatrist for TMS suitability.

The treatment, being quick, non-invasive and subsidised, offers minimal side effects and is covered by Medicare, DVA, and some insurance claims for treatment-resistant depression.

AwareHub is also a registered NDIS provider.

The clinic operates Monday to Friday from The Friendlies Medical Suites, 70-72 Crofton Street, Bundaberg.
