October 10th is Mental Health Day. This day reminds us of the importance of checking in with ourselves and others. As the leaves change colors our minds need rest, care, and renew.

Grounding techniques, also known as grounding exercises or grounding skills, can distract, reframe, or otherwise soothe distressing feelings and help to calm the body. They shift your focus from past or future thinking into the present moment.

Engage in your senses: sight, sound, smell, touch and taste

Sight – Embrace the colors of Fall

Sound- Listen to the rustling leaves or calming music

Smell- Embrace in scents of fall scents or fresh air

Taste- Savor your seasonal foods like apples, sweet potatoes or cinnamon tea

Touch-Feel the texture of leaves, cozy blankets,
