Training Tools/Methods

Training Tools

We are balanced trainers and use balanced training methods and tools to teach dogs. We use various training tools such as prong collars, e-collars, clickers, treats, and toys. The way we pick which one we will need to use and how we should use them depends on the client's dog and what goal we are trying to accomplish.

Training Methods

We use all quadrants of operation such as positive reinforcement, negative reinforcement, positive punishment, and negative punishment. Depending on the dog's training plan will show us which quadrant we will need while training. Treats will be used throughout the training process along with corrections for any undesired behavior. One of the most important things to us here is the relationship between the trainer and the dog. We want training to be a positive experience for everyone including the dog, trainer, and parents.

Pricing

- There are no discounts
- There are no refunds

Private lessons

One-on-one training sessions with you and your dog and get individualized training plans. These lessons will contain the four quadrants of operation (positive reinforcement, negative reinforcement, positive punishment, and negative punishment). Training tools and reinforcement will be used during the training sessions.

Group classes

Group classes will be offered once a week. There will be more than one dog or person that attends these classes. Please do not bring any reactive dogs to our group classes. We are not liable for any damages or injuries to you, your property, or your dog. Training tools and reinforcement will be used throughout the class. Group classes will get cheaper the more people sign up after the prior five people have signed up for the class. You must keep at least a four-foot minimum radius between you and the dogs around you. We do require you to bring a dog bowl for water and water just in case we do not have one on hand. We are excited to seeing you at our group class!
