

I believe our community's strength lies in working together toward shared goals of unity, growth, and cultural pride. My vision is to bring people together across the Nepali diaspora through collaborative social, cultural, and educational initiatives where every voice matters and every contribution counts. I want to help create a welcoming space where we can celebrate our heritage side by side, support one another, and build connections that make our community stronger.

I'm committed to working alongside fellow community members to organize programs that preserve our culture and create opportunities for the next generation. Through open collaboration and shared decision-making, we can ensure that every initiative reflects our collective values and delivers lasting benefits. I believe the best outcomes happen when we pool our diverse skills, perspectives, and experiences toward common goals.

During my five years on the NAFCA Executive Board, I had the privilege of working with incredibly dedicated leaders and community members. Together as a team, we launched cultural festivals that celebrated our identity, expanded outreach efforts that welcomed new voices, created youth programs that empowered young leaders, and organized events that brought different generations together. These achievements weren't the work of any single person—they were the result of many hands, many ideas, and a shared commitment to our community.

These experiences taught me that the most meaningful change happens through partnership and collective effort. Open communication, mutual respect, and genuine collaboration are the foundation of everything we accomplish together. I'm committed to continuing this approach—working alongside others with integrity and inclusivity, listening to diverse perspectives, and always keeping our shared well-being at the center of everything we do. When we work together with purpose and trust, there's no limit to what our community can achieve.

Sincerely,
